

American civilians to stand between Israelis, Egyptians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Monday signed a congressional resolution sending 200 Americans into the Sinai to monitor the disengagement agreement between Egypt and Israel.

"Neither the United States, nor Egypt, nor Israel see it as an end in itself," Ford said, adding he would consult with Congress about "what is required to sustain ... our diplomatic efforts" in the Middle East.

Congress gave strong approval last week to sending American volunteers to monitor the three-year, interim agreement between Israel and Egypt by manning the electronic warning system between opposing forces in the Sinai.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger helped work out the pact last month, and Ford said it was necessary for Americans to stand between the two nations "because of the trust placed in the United States by both Israel and its Arab neighbors."

He said the Sinai agreement is "a significant step towards an over-all settlement in the Middle East. But neither the United States, nor Egypt nor Israel see it as an end in itself."

The October, 1973, war between Israel and Egypt, Ford said, showed another war there would be dangerous "for the entire world," an unstated allusion to fears of a Middle Eastern war escalating to a confrontation between American and Soviet forces.

Ford did not say exactly what he would ask from Congress "to sustain these bilateral relationships," but it certainly would involve aid to the two nations.

Israel is expected to get $2.5 billion in military and economic aid, and Kissinger said Sunday Ford was willing to talk about military aid with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who arrives in Washington Oct. 26, though only in "general terms."

Ford chose Columbus Day to sign the bill and greet the Soviet cosmonauts and American astronauts who met in space in July in the Apollo-Soyuz hookup.

"This was a beginning, hopefully a good beginning, of this new era before us," the President said, hailing the spacemen as "really great pioneers in an effort between these two great countries."

"I'm sure that when you return to the Soviet Union, you will have a warm and friendly feeling for 214 million Americans," Ford told the Soviet cosmonauts, Generals Aleksey A. Leonov and Vladimir A. Shatalov. He said the American astronauts, Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald K. Slayton, were "warmly received" in the Soviet Union.

Rizzo okay after surgery

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mayor Frank L. Rizzo was operated on successfully Monday for a broken hip suffered when he collided with a burly bodyguard while fleeing an explosion during a nine-alarm fire at the Atlantic Richfield Co. refinery Sunday.

Rizzo was listed in satisfactory condition after the one hour, 45 minute operation at Hahnemann Hospital to have a pin inserted in his fractured right hip.

It was reported that Rizzo, 6-foot-2 and 250 pounds, collided with his bodyguard, Anthony Fulwood, 6-foot-8, 260 pounds, when a group fled after a pipeline exploded and sent intense flames shooting into the air during the fire. It was the second of two blasts after the blaze was discovered by a cruising highway patrolman.

Seven persons, including the mayor, were injured but none apparently seriously.

Cause of the blaze was under investigation.

In his hospital room Sunday night, Rizzo grinned at his wife and told her a little ruefully, "I go down to make sure nobody was hurt and I get hurt."

He said there was a "big explosion" and "we all ran. I ran into somebody or something," the mayor said.

Fire Commissioner Joseph R. Rizzo said his brother came to the scene to "tell us to be careful" because of the 12-alarm fire in the neighboring Gulf Oil Co. refinery which killed eight firemen Aug. 17.

Rizzo was expected to be in the hospital about 10 days and will have to conduct his campaign for re-election Nov. 4 on crutches, which he may have to use for three to four months.

REFINERY FIRE CONTROLLED — Philadelphia firemen Monday watered down the remains of a nine-alarm fire that hit the Atlantic-Richfield oil refinery in Philadelphia Sunday. There were seven injuries during the 18 hours it took firefighters to bring the blaze under control. (UPI)

Police nab two convicts; hunt continues for others

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Police Monday night captured two of four escaped convicts, who for two days eluded manhunting dogs, a small army of FBI agents and police tracking them over miles of rugged Southern Illinois countryside.

The two "extremely dangerous" escapers from the top security wing of the Marion Federal Penitentiary were caught after they went to the doors of area residents in search of water. They told police they hadn't had a drink since Saturday.

Law officers tramped in the darkness through wild honeysuckle thickets and dense woods in search of the other two, believed hungry, weary and cornered in a police encircled, 16-square-mile rural patch.

Marion County police said they captured Ed Roche, 39, Katonah, N.Y., believed to be the mastermind of the cunning prison breakout, at about 10:40 p.m., EDT as he ran along railroad tracks in Salem — outside the area that has been staked out by police since Sunday morning.

Just over an hour earlier, Maurice Philon, 40, of Oakland, Calif., was captured in the same general area, near a house where he also stopped to ask for a glass of water.

Deputy Sheriff Dennis Green said Philon told him then none of the convicts had drank any water since Saturday.

Another deputy, Thomas Fisher, said Philon was "mighty hungry and mighty cooperative" after his capture. Philon's clothes were in good condition, authorities said, but he had a scratch on his face from running into a barbed wire at night.

Roche, believed to have fashioned a remote control device that sprang a series of electric grills leading to the prison cells Friday night, was apprehended after a woman told authorities she saw a man running behind her home at the southeast corner of town.

29 oil companies offered $1 billion for lost holdings

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Venezuela offered 29 U.S. and other foreign oil companies $1 billion in compensation Monday for the takeover of their holdings next Jan. 1.

The companies will have 15 days to accept or reject the government offers, which are approximately one-fifth of their investments over the years of close to $5 billion.

Venezuela produces 2.4 million barrels of oil per day and is the world's third largest exporter. It is also the major source of U.S. oil imports.

The compensation offers will be paid in government bonds that may be redeemed in 10 years or, in the case of the smaller firms, in cash.

If the companies do not accept the offers, they will have to begin action before the Venezuelan Supreme Court. Mines Minister Valentin Hernandez, however, said last week, "I have the impression that the companies will accept our offers."

Not included among the companies receiving offers was Occidental Petroleum Corp., now under investigation by the government following reports that it had bribed Venezuelan officials to win the rights to several huge oil fields.

$2.6 billion spent on federal law units

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first inventory ever conducted of federal government police activities showed Monday the government spent $2.6 billion last year to employ 169,625 persons for police, investigative and intelligence-gathering activities in 33 agencies.

The figures covered the fiscal year which ended June 30 and amounted to more than .08 per cent of federal outlays that year.

The survey was conducted by the General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress, and did not include the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency or the Defense Department's intelligence gathering branches. Nor did the GAO survey show how much is spent separately to contract for guards.

The survey showed that the Capitol employed 1,028 guards — more than two for every member of Congress or senator — at a cost of $12.2 million.

The survey raises questions about "the sheer number of government units having some form of law enforcement responsibility" as well as raising the possibility of duplication of effort, according to Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who requested the data.

He said, for example, that 23 departments and agencies have 35 separate guard forces, with four alone in the Treasury

Trio held for gun thefts, robbery in Monroe-Florida

STROUDSBURG — Three youths have been charged with the theft of a quantity of guns earlier this month from two Monroe County businesses and with the Oct. 8 armed robbery of a grocery store in Lake Worth, Fla.

Todd Kern, 18, of 178 Ransberry Ave., East Stroudsburg and a 17-year-old Stroudsburg R.D. 5 youth surrendered to state police at Swiftwater Saturday.

The third youth, a 17-year-old Florida boy, was captured by Lake Worth, Fla., police last Wednesday in a motel where police said the three youths were staying. The motel is near the store they allegedly robbed.

They are charged with stealing a number of guns, including pistols, a carbine and a submachine gun from the Merry Hill Shooting Range, Cresco and the Marshalls Creek Store during the night of Oct. 3 or 4.

According to Lake Worth police, two of the youths, one wielding a chrome-plated .357 magnum revolver believed stolen from one of the stores, held up the all night grocery early Wednesday morning, getting away with $40 in cash and coins.

Kern is confined in the Monroe County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail. The Stroudsburg R.D. 5 youth has also been remanded to the jail, following a hearing in Monroe County Court Monday. Another hearing will be held on Monroe County District Attorney James F. Marsh's request that the juvenile be charged as an adult.

According to Florida authorities, the juvenile apprehended there has also been remanded to the jail.

Lake Worth police said they discovered the trio's whereabouts after an officer on routine patrol noticed an unlicensed car parked in a church lot near the motel where they were staying.

When checking out the car the patrolman found a Pennsylvania license plate later traced as stolen. The car and license plate were stolen from Mikels Motors, Stroudsburg, recently.

Inside the car was a number of cartridges, police said.

After making a routine check of several nearby motels investigators found the room the three youths had rented. It was empty, but when they returned early the next day, Wednesday, Oct. 8, police found the Florida youth, who surrendered, they also found several of the guns and coins wrapped in wrappers believed stolen from the store.

The other two youths, a police spokesman said, were "probably out looking for a license plate to steal for the car." When they returned on foot and saw police cars around their car, the pair fled, dropping guns and bullets.

The Florida spokesman said linking the Lake Worth robbery and the Monroe County burglaries came after contact with the FBI and state police at Swiftwater.

Officials probe mutiny charge

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The five survivors of the sunken Panamanian freighter Mimi gave statements Monday to federal authorities who tried to determine whether the vessel's crew mutinied and its four officers were murdered in an abortive attempt to take the ship to Cuba.

Authorities from three federal agencies and three foreign governments also attempted to sort out the tangled jurisdictions involved in the possible mutiny and apparent slaying of the four West German officers.

A U.S. immigration official declined to "either confirm or deny" that one of the four Indonesian seamen, Gun Supardi, had confessed stabbing to death the four German officers and scuttling the ship.

The four Indonesians and a Filipino cook were held incommunicado at the West Palm Beach city jail by U.S. authorities. The four Indonesians, one of whom allegedly has admitted the slayings, asked to see representatives of their government and a U.S. official indicated that eventually they would be allowed to do so.

West Germany, where the seamen signed on to the sunken 220-foot freighter Mimi, also is claiming jurisdiction along with Panama.

However, Louis T. Gidel, deputy district immigration director, said, "There is no question of the legality of our custody."

He explained that under international maritime law the United States has custody because the ship was last in Miami and had not entered a foreign port before it mysteriously sank Friday night in the Old Bahama channel, between Andros Island in the Bahamas and the north coast of Cuba's Camaguey Province.

The Coast Guard at Miami suspended the search for the four missing German officers, Capt. Lothar Eckard, Chief Engineer Bernd Hesse, Second Engineer Horst Hershke and Chief Mate Manfred Schmidt.

Country music stars honored

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — John Denver, the gentle singer of Rocky Mountain highs, accepted his Country Music Association Entertainer of the Year Award from Perth, Australia via satellite Monday night.

Denver, on tour in the Far East, could not attend the 9th annual awards show at the Grand Ole Opry.

"I love singing for you, all my country music friends. I thank you Mom and Dad," the stunned blond said.

Denver also won Song of the Year for his "Back Home Again."

Denver's family background, that of an Air Force brat, is not traditional country. However, his mellow, hybrid-country-rock-pop sound has made his records million sellers in nearly all markets.

Male Vocalist of the Year honors went to Waylon Jennings, a Texas powerhouse of country-rock. The bearded Jennings, who once toured with the late Buddy Holly's rock band, is an acknowledged rebel in the industry.

Defense plan could delay Hearst's trial for months

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A defense strategy to have Patricia Hearst declared mentally incompetent could delay her criminal trial for months and might mean that it never would be held at all.

The tests being given to Miss Hearst by three court-appointed psychiatrists and a clinical psychologist could find that she is mentally unable to participate in her own defense.

If that is the case, she would undergo treatment until she recovers sufficiently to take an active role in helping her lawyers.

What's news

Chinese take aim at Red Square

WASHINGTON — The Chinese have deployed two intercontinental ballistic missiles in Western China capable of reaching Moscow and key industrial targets with three megaton nuclear warheads. Aviation Week and Space Technology said Monday. The weekly journal said that Soviet fears of the new Chinese capability may be related to recently reported Soviet violations of the antiballistic missile treaty. Soviet officials indirectly have approached U.S. delegates in Geneva concerning the development testing of ABM radar to counter the Chinese threat, making clear the radar was not for use against U.S. weapons developments. Aviation Week said.

Hirohito heads home

HONOLULU — Japan's Emperor Hirohito, refreshed after spending a day in his hotel suite because of fatigue and a slight cold, and Empress Nagako flew home Monday after their historic, two-week U.S. visit. Hirohito, 74, was given a flaming orange ilima lei and his wife a bouquet of red anthuriums before they walked up the steps to enter the Japan Air Lines jetliner. The plane took off for the 10-hour flight to Tokyo at 1:01 p.m. HST, 7:01 p.m. EDT from Hickam Air Force Base. The royal couple received a 21-gun salute when their Hawaii Airline plane landed after a 168-mile flight from Ke-Ahohoe Airport at Kona on the big island of Hawaii where they spent Sunday, resting after the American tour.

Post to sue pressmen

WASHINGTON — The Washington Post will file a civil suit against those believed responsible for damaging its presses during a walkout by pressmen, and will refuse to allow anyone found responsible back in the plant, a Post spokesman said Monday. "We simply cannot ignore the financial losses caused by the pressmen's vandalism, anymore than any citizen would set aside or excuse criminal and financially damaging acts against his home or business," Post General Manager Mark Meagher said at a news conference. "In the meantime, we shall continue to exercise our right to publish."

'Bombpack' bandits sought

EUREKA, Calif. — FBI agents and police searched Monday for a pair of bank robbers who got away with $47,500 by strapping a "bombpack" to the back of a bank president and threatening to blow him up by remote control. Two robbers wearing masks and armed with automatic rifles invaded the home of Herbert Rasmussen, president of the Bank of Loleta in the nearby town of Loleta Saturday. They fastened a backpack on him and told him it contained a bomb which they could detonate by remote control. The holdup men gave him instructions to get the money from the bank vault and place it on a designated spot in the bank's parking lot. They bound and gagged Rasmussen's wife and tied her to a tree. The frightened banker followed the robbers' instructions, which directed him to go to a jetty on Humboldt Bay after depositing the cash.

Fitzpatrick hearing resumes

PHILADELPHIA — A Pennsylvania Supreme Court Disciplinary Board hearing into 13 charges of unethical conduct against District Attorney F. Emmett Fitzpatrick resumes today following a three-day respite. The hearings by a three-member board recessed Friday after prominent attorney Richard A. Sprague called Fitzpatrick, his former boss, "an outrageous liar." The Columbus Day holiday prevented testimony Monday. The hearings began last Oct. 6.

Optimists honor Beame

NEW YORK — The Optimist Club of New York figures Mayor Abe Beame is successfully fighting off pessimism. On Friday the club plans to present the mayor with its "Optimist Award" for "his courage and optimism in coping with New York City's problems." In a letter to the news editors announcing the award, the club warned that "Right now New York is in urgent need of a flow of optimism to counteract a hell of a lot of bad publicity it has been getting lately that is harmful to everybody, including you."

Navel not tired

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The world belly dancing co-champion says two days in the hospital was a small price to pay for a piece of the title and she's ready to defend it against all comers. Pam Ness, 22, and another dancer, Nicole English, set a new world record for continuous belly dancing earlier this month, posting times of 27½ hours. Soon afterward, Miss Ness was hospitalized for exhaustion and spent two days recuperating at the Research Medical Center. "I couldn't bend my feet at all after it was over and they're full of calluses now," she said. "I went through four pairs of panty hose and lost 8½ pounds during the dancing. My belt was almost falling off."

Knievel defends act

KINGS ISLE, Ohio — Evel Knievel said Monday he would be willing to meet with Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., one of the daredevil's most severe critics, to discuss motorcycle and bicycle safety. Knievel, who is scheduled to attempt a jump over 14 buses at Kings Island Amusement Park here, discussed allegations by Murphy that his stunts are detrimental to the safety of youths who attempt to imitate him. Murphy also criticized the proposed television coverage of the jump Oct. 25. Knievel distributed a letter he sent to Murphy. "I suggest that an argument between us and your attack on ABC television doesn't seem to be the most productive way to face the challenge of increasing safety among bicycle and motorcycle riders," said Knievel. "Rather we should work together to improve education and awareness of the precautions which should be taken to increase the safety factors," he said, suggesting that he and Murphy meet "to develop a plan for promoting safety."

rational as well as a factual understanding of the proceedings against him."

"During the 95 hours I spoke to her I consistently reported that her condition is such that she is in and out of reality, which made me cognizant that she is not able to aid in her defense," Johnson said.

Normally, if a defendant in a federal case is found mentally incompetent, he or she would undergo mental treatment for up to a year. If by then the defendant still is not improved enough to stand trial, normal procedure is to commit the defendant to a state mental hospital and drop the charges.

Under California state law, a defendant cannot be hospitalized for treatment for more than three years, after which the pending charges must be dismissed and the patient freed.

Indian land site of bombing spree

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A series of electrically timed explosions Monday damaged four buildings and a transformer installation in this Indian reservation community, a frequent focal point of Indian unrest.

Robert W. McMullen, acting Bureau of Indian Affairs law enforcement chief, said the four explosions began about 6 a.m. and continued at 10 minute intervals, heavily damaging the main BIA office building, the BIA Law and Order building, the Oglala Sioux tribal courthouse and an electrical transformer south of the troubled community. The buildings were empty at the time and there were no injuries.

BIA officials speculated that the bombings may have been linked to the fact that Monday was Columbus Day, the date when the nation traditionally observes its discovery by the White Man.

UFO group's trail leading eastward

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The trail of the wandering followers of a mysterious couple promising a better life on another planet leads eastward.

The most recently received letter from one of the followers gives no indication, however, of their destination.

Don Brown, Lebanon, Ore., said he received a letter from his son, Neil, 22, postmarked Oct. 7 in Walnut, Ill., a town of 1,500 about 45 miles east of Moline, Ill. Brown said his son indicated the group was still traveling and that the man and woman known as "The Two" were not with them.

The younger Brown, who claimed to have seen a UFO Aug. 1, is among 23 persons missing from Oregon and believed to have followed the couple after a meeting in Waldport, Ore., Sept. 14.

Earlier communications indicated the group had gone through Colorado.

The couple has told followers they must dispose of all their possessions and give up their children and other family ties to undergo training for a metamorphosis into a higher form of life. Arrival at the higher form of life is to be marked by transportation from earth by UFO.

Brown said his son, an artist and part time mail room employee of the Register-Guard in Eugene, Ore., wrote: "I am safe and am not and will not do anything to break the law. We do not break laws....This is my thing. I am happy to be part of it."

Ike's personal library turned over to college

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — The personal library of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has been presented to Eisenhower College by Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower.

The collection was to be opened for the first time to students and the public on the 85th anniversary of Eisenhower's birth today.

The collections consists of 870 volumes, according to college librarian William G. Kerr.

He said "it reflects Gen. Eisenhower's strong interest in military affairs and American and European history."

Numerous volumes on art and art history also were included, Kerr said.

The books will be kept in the special collections room of Slater Library at Eisenhower College. The room already houses a number of valuable books, including a collection of English and American first editions of the writings of Winston Churchill, the gift of Ellis D. Slater, a close friend of Eisenhower and a trustee of the college.

Kerr pointed out that marginalia and title page inscriptions provide historical value to the Eisenhower collection.

He said, "many of the books are presentation copies to the former president from important historical personalities of our era such as Churchill, DeGaulle and Field Marshal Montgomery."

Eisenhower College, a four-year liberal arts college, was founded in 1965.

Propane explosion injures two

MATAWAN, N.J. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a propane gas plant here Monday, seriously burning two men and blowing another 30 feet off a loading deck, authorities reported.

Police identified the injured as Thomas Sommers, 24, and Harry Huff, 30, both of Union Beach. The two men were taken to Bayshore Community Hospital in Holmdel where they were reported in critical condition with burns over 50 per cent of their bodies.

They said the blast rocked the one-story concrete plant of the Suburban Propane Co. shortly after 3 p.m. while the three men were apparently refilling propane tanks on the loading deck.

Broadway Portuguese boss asks for peace

NEW YORK (UPI) — Splashy Broadway musicals were back on stage Monday for the time since musicians struck the Great White Way nearly a month ago.

"A Chorus Line," "Pippin," "Shenandoah," and "Chicago" were the first shows back on the line and box offices at the four theaters all reported brisk business.

Four other shows — "Candide," "Raisin," "The Wiz," and "Grease" — will reopen today and "The Magic Show" resumes Wednesday.

Tickets were also on sale for two new productions, "Treemonisha," to debut Wednesday, and "Boccaccio" which will go back into preview this week.

Theater owners met at the Booth Theater Sunday and voted 75-0 to approve the new three-year accord with the musicians' union. Earlier, Local 802, American Federation of Musicians approved the pact, which provides for a wage hike from the current $290-a-week to $350 in the first year, to $370 in the second and to $380 in the third year.

The pact keeps minimum orchestra size frozen at 26 until 1981—a major issue in the walkout—except for the specific elimination of one or two positions for new shows.

A spokesman at the Shubert Theatre where "A Chorus Line" is playing, said tickets for Monday night's performance were sold out, mostly to theater patrons who had held tickets since before the strike. What few tickets had been available were soon gone.

Gerald Schoenfeld, chief negotiator for the theaters, said the strike had been costly to many shows, but he declined to flatly say whether some of the shows might be forced to close because of the walkout.

Argentine violence continues

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — A leftist assassination squad murdered three persons in a crowded steakhouse and the army killed two guerrillas in the latest political violence reported Monday.

The death toll in the country's internal warfare reached 534 for the year.

Police said four men in civilian clothes carrying sub-machineguns walked into a steakhouse on a highway 18 miles south of Buenos Aires shortly before midnight Sunday.

The intruders announced they were federal police and went to the table where Eduardo Fromigue, 24, a security agent for the powerful Metalworkers Union, was seated with another man and two young women, police said.

The attackers opened fire on the four and fled, leaving Fromigue, Juan Carlos Acesta, 23, and Graciela Choff, 19, sprawled dead in pools of blood. Silvia Rodriguez, 24, was rushed to hospital seriously wounded.

A woman sitting at a nearby table suffered a minor bullet wound in the leg.

Police described the gunmen as leftist guerrillas. The Metalworkers Union is a bastion of the right wing of the labor movement.

Oil blocs to hold conference

PARIS (UPI) — Representatives of the industrial, developing and oil-rich nations decided in principle Monday to hold a conference on international economic cooperation in December.

Cesidio Guazzaroni of Italy, head of the European Common Market delegation, said the three blocs, in a preparatory meeting, reached quick agreement on holding the full conference at cabinet level in Paris beginning Dec. 16.

The conference is expected to last two or three days, Guazzaroni said, and will appoint four commissions to work for the next year on the world's major economic problems—energy, raw materials, development and financial questions.

Gilbert Polytech no ramblin' wreck to its alumni

REUNION DINNER — Alumni of the defunct Gilbert Polytechnic Institute join in talk of old times and courses such as the theory of penmanship at the 22nd annual reunion. (Staff photos by Maureen Rufe)

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — "Like a gentle stream, not large, that flows through a barren soil and enriches it and gives it new life, so has this school's influence flown through the community in which it is located and has made many young hearts glad, opened to them a chance, and given them a lift on life's great highway."

It was in the spirit of that quotation, once used to describe the merits of the famous Gilbert Polytechnic Institute, that characterized the 22nd annual "Poly" reunion held in Gilbert on Saturday. More than 60 graduates and former students from among the 1,700 that once attended the famed local academy came together for their annual time of fellowship and feasting on a full course West-End chicken dinner, topped with apple pie for dessert.

As a table of school photographs, former textbooks, institute catalogues and other memorabilia, looked on at the dinner guests from a corner of the United Church of Christ Sunday School (once the old Polytechnic building), the former students lifted up their voices in old Poly song that included the popular rendition of "How Do Ya Do?" and "Here We Sit Like Birds in the Wilderness Waiting For Apple Pie."

Coming the longest distance for the reunion banquet was Dr. Asa Schaeffer, of Philadelphia, a famed zoologist in his nineties, who graduated in 1900. The oldest living graduate is Laura Gregory Hawk, a patient at Stroud Manor, who could not attend the regular reunion.

With colorful class flags dating from 1898 to 1918 flying overhead, master of ceremonies and Alumni President Martin Gearhart read the opening prayer thanking God for the hallowed days at the institute that the graduates once shared and thanking Him for the opportunity to gather together again this year.

Although actually founded in

Dr. Asa Schaeffer

1886 by the Rev. Frank W. Smith, the Polytechnic's first graduation was held in 1889. The academy was active and educated more than 1,700 students until it was forced to close in 1922, after state regulations began to require normal school certificates for teaching in the newly established public schools.

While in business, the institute trained teachers and also prepared students to enter college in the fields of medicine, ministry, law and education. A total of 125 Polytechnic graduates went on to higher education and 10 became Christian ministers. The school also offered an agricultural program and emphasized business subjects.

The original home for the school was the reformed church school chapel in Gilbert. The Guild Hall of the Polytechnic was later constructed and an annex of two rooms was added in 1897.

It was not until 1922 that the Polytechnic alumni organization was founded for men and women who wanted to keep the Polytechnic spirit alive.

One of the famed Polytechnic alumni, class of 1890, was Franklin Koehler, a one-time superintendent of schools for Monroe County and later president of East Stroudsburg State College.

It cost anywhere from $6 to $11 to attend the spring, summer, fall, and winter terms at the Polytechnic, depending on how many weeks they ran in 1914-1915. By the week the fee could run between $.82 and $1. Board was $3 a week or $126 a year and students were required to live in private homes around the academy. Washing was $1 a month or $10 a year. The total tuition, board and washing fee per year to attend the school in 1914-1915 was $170.

According to the catalogue from the same year, the Gilbert Polytechnic offered three main courses: academic, college prep and a course on agriculture.

A certificate of entrance was granted to graduates who intended to go on to college and they were usually accepted when the certificate was presented. The school, at the time, emphasized developing good morals and Christian character, in addition to developing the mind.

A junior year course scheduled from the 1914 year might include the following subjects: reading, theory of penmanship, orthography, English grammar, composition, drawing, arithmetic, methods of teaching, morals and manners, political geography, bookkeeping, vocal music, algebra, physical geography and Latin. There were special courses on Caesar, Cicero's orations, and things called pedagogics and elocution.

Books could be rented for 10 to 15 cents a term and confidential reports were sent to parents at the end of the term. It cost approximately 15 cents a term for stationary.

Vocal and instrumental music were taught to students in the 1914-1915 year, as well as tennis, baseball, croquet and basketball.

School officially began at 8:45 a.m. and ran until 4:15 p.m.; there was an hour lunch break.

Study was required in rooms between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. and students were required to worship each Sunday in the church of their choice. No smoking or drinking alcoholic beverages was permitted on the school grounds, and profane language was forbidden.

Three special classes were offered in differing degrees for teachers in the spring term, and organizations included the Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Emersonian Literature Society and the Radio Club. There were a total of 125 students that attended the academy in the 1914-1915 school year.

Citizen-school unit forms in Pleasant Valley district

BRODHEADSVILLE — About 40 people gathered under the banner of Citizens United for Education (CUE) last week to act as a liaison between the school officials and divided residents of the Pleasant Valley School District.

Rev. Paul Xander, one of CUE's organizers, said residents act as if the district is composed of four separate districts of Chestnuthill, Polk, Eldred and Ross townships.

CUE, he said, will allow representatives in each of the four sections to discuss problems and channel them to administrators and board members of the district.

Several reasons
He said it was a "whole shotgun blast of reasons" why the group formed, but cited problems of overcrowding at Eldred Elementary School; a 10-mill tax hike this year; drug, alcohol and discipline problems in the school as some of the reasons for uniting.

The main goal of CUE, the pastor of Zion Lutheran Church in Brodheadsville said, is "to place the child first in the school district, that whatever decision is made, the child is of prime importance."

Peter Kandrat, a Kresgeville resident who chaired CUE's first meeting, said some residents may be afraid to approach school officials with problems, so CUE will do it for them.

The three general goals of the group, he said, are to share information, provide guidance and lend support. That way, he commented, facts won't be distorted, everyone will have a channel to school officials and the major district problem — uninformed residents — can be tackled.

Kandrat said a committee of eight residents, representing the four sections of the district, has been formed and will discuss any suggestions of complaints at CUE's next meeting at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13 in the cafeteria of the Pleasant Valley High School, Brodheadsville.

He said three CUE members are also serving on the district's Citizens Advisory Committee, a state-mandated group that helps administrators draft their five-year Long Range Plan.

Provide support
Rev. Xander cautioned, "We are really not a group to bring undue pressure, but a group to support everyone concerned. Everyone gets a fare shake."

The first information meeting of CUE took place in July, Xander said, "because a parent had problems with an administrator." That parent, he said, "had no place to go, no place to find support."

CUE, he continued, will provide that support. Xander said he became involved after hearing many of the people's problems in Sunday school and church. "People know I try to be involved in school and that they can talk to me."

One example of problems CUE can tackle is prayer in public schools, he continued. "It may come up. The group could be a forum and hammer this thing out, and maybe make a clear issue instead of an emotional issue."

He said CUE will deal with district-wide problems, while the Pleasant Valley Home-School Assn. deals mainly with elementary-level concerns.

Xander said the group really started when one member saw a billboard urging people with questions and problems concerning education to telephone NEW-WORK. After calling the number, the person received information about the national group called Concerned Citizens in Education.

Kandrat said CUE decided not to affiliate with the national group yet.

Blood vital diagnostic key

When a doctor takes a blood test what is he testing for?
Barry F., Ohio

Dear Barry:

There are few more exciting letters than the ones I receive from young boys and girls who show their interest in medicine and science.

I have watched young people as they progress from their initiation into science to become physicians and research workers.

When a blood sample is taken, it is sent to a laboratory for analysis. Modern, computerized techniques can, in a short time, study the blood and give "read-outs" of perhaps 60 or more tests.

Studies for sugar, uric acid, urea nitrogen, cholesterol, calcium and phosphorous are some of the significant tests. Red blood cells are studied for their number, their size and their shape, all of which have specific meaning in health and disease.

The number of white blood cells is an indication of the activity of infection. There are a number of subdivisions of the white blood cells, one of which indicates an allergic tendency.

Heterophile studies indicate the presence of mononucleosis. The "protein-bound iodine" test is used to determine the activity of the thyroid gland.

The blood group of a person is identified through this testing.

Bilirubin studies of the blood are important in liver and gall bladder disease.

Enzyme studies are important in understanding the condition of the pancreas.

The SGOT test is important in cases of heart attacks, liver damage and other complex conditions.

The ability of the blood to coagulate is studied in people who have a bleeding tendency.

I have listed only some of the many tests that can be performed on blood. The physician, using his judgment, decides what specific tests he wants to have made. This depends on his impression of a patient after a complete medical examination.

An extensive report on coronary heart disease has been completed in California.

The study reaffirms that "aggressive, driving individuals are more apt to have a heart attack than more relaxed persons."

"Those men falling into the type A behavior pattern are aggressive, ambitious, competitive and have a chronic sense of time urgency. These people had heart attacks more than twice as frequently as those in type B or the more relaxed individuals."

Certainly, this study, made on more than 3,000 men over a period of eight years, should be used to re-educate type A personalities in an effort to prevent the frequency and severity of acute heart attacks.

Public wants government to hold line on spending

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Politicians, searching for an issue or even a clue to the public mood, should examine the latest findings of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

The message that comes through unmistakably is this: Hold the line on government spending at all levels — or retrench.

The ACIR has been making such studies since 1972 as part of its continuing research on fiscal federalism. The Advisory Commission focuses on changing public attitudes toward government — state, local and Federal, their tax instruments, their effectiveness and the impact of the help provided from Washington.

This year was the first time the ACIR tried to get a public reading on the proper size of government. The significant finding was that only five per cent of the people want public services and taxes increased at the present time.

Nationally, 45 per cent of those questioned said taxes and services ought to be kept where they are, while 38 per cent supported decreases in both.

Shapp running under a cloud

Gov. Milton Shapp, also an announced candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, claims he is not the target of a grand jury investigation into an unreported $20,000 political contribution during the 1972 campaign.

Perhaps not — at this point, anyway. But he is a target politically, for a Watergate-wary nation is going to look with a jaundiced eye at anyone with the least tinge of corruption hanging around him.

In that sense, the governor must clear up any doubts if he has any hope of making any kind of respectable showing in the presidential sweepstakes. The electorate has been too sensitized to corruption in high places of just the sort clouding the governor's administration. Few votes will go in the direction of someone with the least taint of scandal.

That's why Shapp held his press conference Friday to tell the public what he testified to before the grand jury hearing evidence about a missing $20,000 political contribution from a Beaver County engineer.

The governor said little of substance, though. And, as anyone in his position would do, he denied any wrong-doing and impropriety. Predictably, the onus for possible misuse or misdirection of funds was placed on those nameless functionaries and obscure, anonymous committees to whom Shapp said he delegated all fund-raising functions.

The governor also pledged his administration would investigate thoroughly any allegations of wrong-doing, but that carries little weight with a public exposed to the Watergate era's official coverups by agencies investigating themselves.

Assuming the grand jury finds no reason to take action against Shapp and escapes having its probe politicized by the opposition, Shapp's only recourse would seem to be to clear the air by appointing an independent panel, somewhat analogous to the Watergate special prosecutor's office, to investigate the campaign fund allegations and report publicly.

The alternative is to say nothing and risk leaving alive the suspicion of impropriety and illegality that now clings to the governor — not a very comfortable situation for a man who insists he's in the presidential race to the end, but who no doubt would welcome some high national office should he make a respectable showing.

Quite a wind up for the year!

Club news

The Pocono Mountain Stamp Club will meet Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. At this meeting several dealers will bring collections and stamps for the members to look through and purchase if desired.

Regardless of perspective — age, sex, education, occupation, location, income level, family status, and race — 70 per cent or more of the respondents in each category said they would halt further expansion of services and taxes.

ACIR notes that this view, while strong in every category, intensifies as the income of the respondent increases. It is a bit weaker among non-whites than among whites and in the farmer and farm laborer occupation group.

If the economy picks up next year, it will be interesting to see if public attitudes change. At a time of economic recession, with the attendant uncertainties, it may not be too surprising that people want to see government spending and taxes curtailed.

The cautious politician of course, would want to bear in mind that a strong general aversion to greater spending and taxes does not necessarily reveal what the voters would say to a specific spending or tax proposal.

But Congress does appear extremely sensitive at this time to the apparent public desire to hold the line. Thus, there is virtually no movement toward enacting major new social programs. Health insurance is on the backburner. Tax and welfare reform are moving to the front. Energy and reducing the cost of government regulation are likely to be dominant issues for months to come.

The ACIR poll, while reflecting a conservative spending philosophy, also turned up the fact that voters now view the federal government as the level of government that provides "the most for their money." This was a marked turnaround from last year's results which showed all three levels of government about on a par.

The upturn in public favor for the "Feds" apparently reflects the end of the Watergate crisis and the upswing in public confidence in the Presidency. But the analysts believe it may also be attributed to the fact that the federal government enjoys certain fiscal advantages over state and local governments, particularly in periods of recession.

Because of its ability to engage in deficit financing, only the federal government is in a position both to expand its spending and cut its taxes. By contrast, many state and local governments must take such unpopular actions as increasing taxes or decreasing services — or both.

On another key question, the poll found that local property taxes rated about evenly with the Federal income tax as the least fair of the major Federal, state and local taxes. However, in the Northeast, the local property tax was called the "worst" with state sales taxes, a close second.

Finally, the poll shows strong support for continuing the general revenue sharing program. But it turned up an amazingly high percentage of persons (23) who have no opinion about the program.

This confirms the findings of a separate study late last year which showed that 43 per cent of the public had never even heard about the program under which some $6 billion in unattached money is being channeled back to the states and local communities to spend as they wish. Only 22 per cent could explain what the program is intended to do.

This is one reason why members of Congress, in extending the program, are studying ways to increase citizen involvement and greater local participation in spending decisions. That, of course, is what the shared revenue concept is all about.

'All men created equal'

Jeffrey Hart

Not long ago, I found myself in a panel discussion at which one of the participants asserted that Thomas Jefferson's phrase, "all men are created equal" in the Declaration of Independence, enjoined upon us, now a global redistribution of wealth. This man was a professor of government, no less, at an Ivy League college. Then, last week, a student in my freshman seminar at Dartmouth observed that the "all men are created equal" clause was indeed a radical thought.

Since total ignorance about the Declaration thus seems to embrace senior professors and freshman alike, and since the "all men are created equal" clause is certain to be rattling around during the Bicentennial year, a few words about it may not be amiss. Actually, short as it is, I suspect the Declaration is a revered but largely unread document.

First of all, far from supposing it a radical statement, something surprising and novel, Jefferson regarded his "all men are created equal" clause as being among "self-evident" truths. That is, his readers would be expected to give virtually automatic assent to it. Far from being something previously unheard of, it was a commonplace.

What it's all about

But what does it mean? The clause, of course, occurs in the second paragraph of the Declaration, the opening paragraph of which — naturally enough — tells us what the document as a whole will be about. That is, it will be about political separation from Great Britain: to "dissolve the political bands." The Americans aim to assume "among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them . . ."

Eighteenth-century rhetorical procedure did not normally feature free association. What followed after that opening paragraph would be expected to bear on the announced topic — political separation, and the establishment of a new government.

And indeed it does. Jefferson couches his argument in Lockean terms, social-contract thoroughly familiar to his readers. He begins in the second paragraph by discussing the condition of man prior to the establishment of government, in the famous "state of nature." It is there, prior to government, that "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Why then establish governments? Jefferson answers in completely Lockean terms. It is among the "self-evident" truths "that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men."

What "all men are created equal" means in this context can hardly be the subject of dispute. It means that in a state of nature, prior to government, American are equal to Englishmen in possessing those "inalienable rights," among which are "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Americans, in other words, are not naturally subordinate to Englishmen. No such rule of Englishmen over Americans is part of "the laws of nature and of nature's God." What is asserted here is an equality of political entitlement existing in a state of nature. Americans are "equal" to all men in that they too are entitled to set up a government which will "secure" those specified inalienable rights.

Nothing whatsoever in the Declaration says that it is the goal of government, once established, to bring about a state of "equality," however that word is defined.

Explicitly left open

The Declaration does not even specify the form of government best suited to securing those inalienable rights. It is, notably, not a "democratic" document. The form of government under which "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" are to be secured is left explicitly open, as the following language makes clear: "whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness." The Constitution will specify that "form."

The establishment of a monarchy, for example, would be perfectly consistent with the language of 1776. Indeed, as the rest of the Declaration makes clear, it is only under the most severe provocation by a particular king that these steps are being taken at all.

Startlingly enough, despite prevailing misconceptions, it is clear that the Declaration — instead of being an egalitarian document — is an anti-egalitarian one.

Among those inalienable rights to be secured by government "equality" is nowhere mentioned — but liberty certainly is. And of course liberty is the great enemy of equality.

If that is not conclusive enough, ponder this charge made against George III: "He has . . . endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexed, and conditions." Jefferson obviously does not think savagery and civilization equal. And the thinks that civilization contains various "conditions" — that is, ranks.

The widespread misunderstanding of the Declaration is truly extraordinary, and I will explore the reasons for it in a future column.

Army's 'super trucks'

Jack Anderson
With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — We have spent months, as part of our watch on waste, digging out the details of a $25 million Army boondoggle.

When the military brass squander the taxpayers' millions, they invariably spend more millions to cover it up. The misspending, therefore, is sometimes difficult to trace.

The story is complex. Let's call it the Anatomy of a Boondoggle.

It began in December 1968, when the Army awarded a $136 million multi-year contract to General Motors to produce a fleet of "super trucks."

To win the contract, GM had to meet operating specifications for a truck far tougher than the commercial trucks that the Army had been using.

The generals were sufficiently pleased with GM's offer that they ignored a study from Kaiser Jeep, which claimed the company could meet all the performance specifications and still save the taxpayers millions.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., and the General Accounting Office, quite properly, demanded to know why the Army had overlooked a possible opportunity to save money. So the Army in 1971 belatedly agreed to conduct comparative tests of both the GM and Kaiser trucks under identical conditions at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

A grueling, 30,000-mile test proved what the Army experts had already concluded. Although the initial cost of the Kaiser truck was slightly lower, the GM truck not only was sturdier but cost far less to maintain.

The test results stated, for example, that the GM truck went more than twice as far between mechanical failures than the Kaiser model. One Army expert called the GM vehicle "the best truck of this type I've ever seen."

Another Army analyst, who rode in both trucks, said at the test's conclusion that the GM model was in "top condition" but the Kaiser model was "literally falling apart." The Army experts agreed emphatically that GM had the better truck.

Thus vindicated, the Army might have been expected to go ahead with the procurement. But this was too logical for the military mind. Instead, the Army inexplicably canceled the GM contract in May, 1971.

This was no simple matter, since GM had already geared up for production. GM demanded and received $12.9 million for disassembling the production line.

Another $12.4 million, which had already been invested in research and development, also went down the Pentagon drain. The GM cancellation, in other words, cost the taxpayers a painful $25.3 million.

For this substantial sum, the Army received 27 prototype trucks, a set of blueprints and some special tools of no use except for assembling the truck that wasn't.

Thus, the Army effort to produce "more truck for the buck" wound up, instead, producing no trucks but costing a lot of bucks.

But this, unfortunately, isn't the end of the story. The Army is now preparing to spend $145 million for 33,000 commercial trucks. These are little different than the trucks that the Army in 1967 insisted weren't adequate.

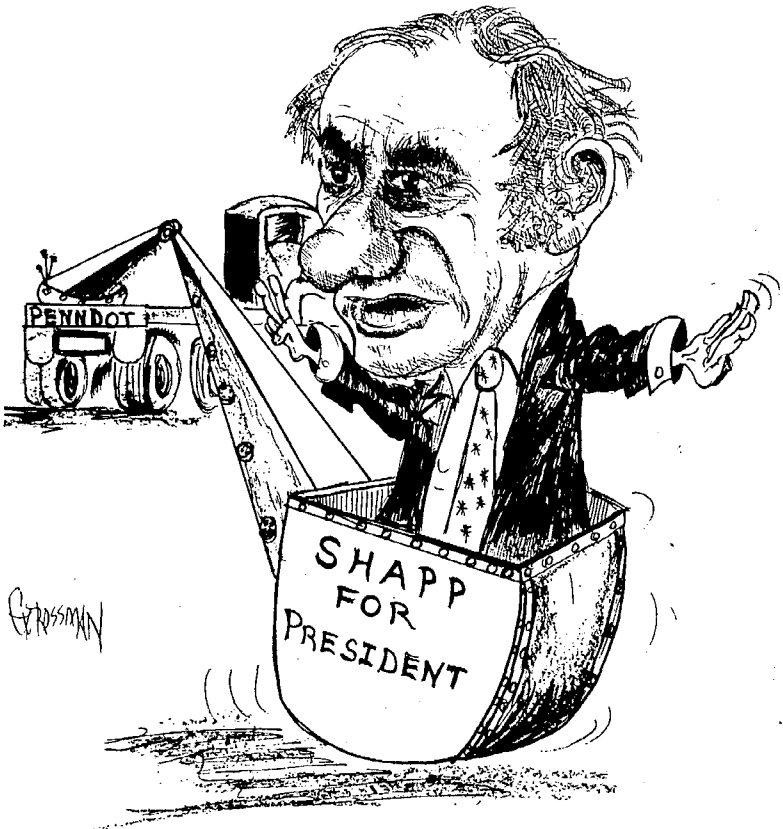

Inflation, meanwhile, has sent costs soaring. So the Army must now pay about the same for the inferior trucks as it would have cost to produce the superior GM models.

Army experts have acknowledged to us privately that the commercial trucks will be woefully inadequate in the field. The Army ordered these trucks with fuel-eating V-8 engines and automatic transmissions. The Army could have saved $5 million by purchasing the simpler six-cylinder model not to mention the gasoline savings of 5 million to 9 million gallons a year.

An Army spokesman contended that the GM truck "exceeded minimum requirements" and didn't fit into the Army's "life cycle costs" budget.

Footnote: The waste, which we have carefully documented, doesn't include countless man hours that all the auditors have spent investigating, compiling and evaluating data for the super truck that was never built.

COAL CASH: The Island Creek Coal Company, a subsidiary of Occidental Petroleum, has reported an unbelievable profit increase of 12,000 per cent since 1972 — a feat unmatched by any other American firm.

Slashing hospital costs

Permits scheduling of tests so the tests do not interfere with your job and family responsibilities and do not keep you away from your office and home any longer than essential;

Relieves physicians of the pressure of getting both testing and treatment completed on patients in a hurry, in order to make beds available for other seriously ill patients. (One Pennsylvania hospital reported that its potential bed capacity had risen by 11 beds with PAT and that the length of stay for elderly patients had been cut by more than two days.)

What kinds of tests are covered by pre-admission testing? Generally, laboratory, X-ray, electrocardiograms, metabolism and other tests health insurance plans would normally cover on an inpatient basis. And although PAT is used most frequently in elective (non-emergency) medical conditions requiring extensive testing before hospital treatment seems indicated.

This is merely one of the relatively new cost-cutting techniques, many of which you can apply to reduce or at least moderate the soaring costs of hospital care up 17.5 per cent in the first half of 1975 alone. A hospital room and care now averages $131.20 a day. Ask about PAT! Use it!

Letters to the editor

How about pros?

Editor, The Record:

Flip DeLuca seems to be biased in his report of the Oct. 1 meeting on Act 319. He makes the assumption that "many" of the over 100 county residents were opposed to the act. There was no show of hands to verify this.

The fact that those who were in opposition were more vocal does not mean that only a few present were in favor of the law. Why has DeLuca included comments and names of five in opposition and only one in favor? Elwood Arndt made some extremely valid comments and although booed by some, as was reported, he was applauded by others.

DeLuca has given the voice of the press to the loud voices at the meeting and has overlooked the refined comments of others.

In response to William Livingood who commented that the law "favors the wealthy," he has made it would seem an incomplete investigation of all those involved or he could not make such a general statement.

Doctor's bill

Dear Miss Landers: As a physician, may I comment on my colleague who blew his stack when his patient deducted $1.50 from her bill because she had to wait well beyond her appointment time? How often does this happen? If it occurs rarely, or if the wait is a short one, she should overlook it.

If it happens frequently you can bet he has no interest in the patient or her medical problems. He is deliberately overscheduling to keep the bucks rolling in. My advice is for her to find another doctor, not merely to save needles' waiting time, but more importantly to make certain she is getting proper attention. Unfortunately, physicians who overschedule also tend to under-treat.

A Westchester Physician

Dear Westy: I checked with three good physicians and they agreed. Read on, for a new angle.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about that flap between the physician and the patient who was kept waiting for 2½ hours.

I'm surprised no one called your attention to the fact that it is not the physician who schedules the patients, it's his nurse or desk woman.

I went to a doctor who always ran two or three hours late. It drove me crazy. When I heard his nurse schedule three people for the same time I got smart and changed doctors.

That was ten years ago and I've never had to wait for more than 10 or 15 minutes since.

A few times the nurse has come to the waiting room to tell us the doctor was called out on an emergency. She offered to reschedule those who didn't care to wait. This certainly beats sitting around for two hours wondering what in the world is going on.

I hope I have shed a little light on the subject. —

Mrs. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: So do I. Thanks for lifting the shade.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a guy 17. Four months ago my girlfriend gave me two white mice for my birthday. They've had three litters since and now I have 18 mice.

The mice from the first litter are just about old enough to start their own families. I've been doing a little arithmetic and it's pretty obvious that I'm going to need another cage soon, and eventually a bigger apartment.

I don't want to offend my girl by giving the mice away but I'd like to know if it's possible to get male mice "fixed" so they won't reproduce. Thanks for your help, Ann. —

Them Or Me

Dear You: Yes, mice can be "fixed" — but it's too expensive considering the alternatives. I suggest you give the males (or females) to a university lab. Unless your girl is a moron she'll understand. And may I suggest to other readers who like to give pets as gifts — it's best to select a couple of brothers.

Caught in act

CAUGHT: (Q.) I walked over to Tom's house. His parents were gone and he was keeping his little brother. Tom asked me to make love to him in his bedroom and I did because I love him.

But his brother, who is six, came in before we were through and turned on the light and saw us.

Tom is paying him not to tell their parents. What else should we do? What if I get pregnant? We want a baby. If I had one we could get married. Tom is

16 and I am 15. —

Hopeful in Connecticut

(A.) Yours is a very messy situation. You and Tom not only betrayed and are continuing to betray his parents' trust in him but you are teaching his little brother dirty tricks.

You should hope that you DON'T have a baby and do nothing more to get pregnant because neither of you is ready for marriage or parenthood.

If you are already pregnant, however, ask your parents and Tom's parents to help you decide what to do. And LISTEN to their advice.

NO LETTER: (Q.) I went on my vacation and met a really fantastic guy. He promised to write me and I gave him my address but it has been two weeks and no letter. What should I do? He lives 411 miles from me. —

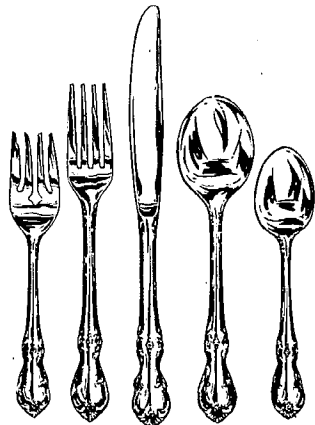

Waiting in Oklahoma

(A.) Write HIM a note. Make it light. Maybe you can find a cute joke card saying something like "Thanks for writing so soon." Add a note of your own saying you miss him and are looking forward to hearing from him. Then give him your address again, in case he has lost it.

Wyckoff Shopper

There may be other times as good as October to go out and see the Poconos; but there certainly isn't a better one! To walk with the scuffle of new-fallen leaves . . . to feel the mild sun and see the autumn sky, and to have the company of busy squirrels and chipmunks to to sense the season at first hand! However, those habitually active furry "friends" would have to shift into high gear to keep up with us "people-type" folk here in the mountains this week. Tonight marks the opening banquet of the Music Study Club at the Penn Stroud Hilton that offers the post banquet "dessert" of two of the finest young artists being heard in concert circles today. Katherine Ciesinski, the mezzo-soprano that won the coveted Metropolitan Opera auditions last year; and cellist Mary Beth Rosen, who appeared last season with the Philadelphia Orchestra. That's pretty fast company, and leaves no doubt as to their ability. Ann George, altho lamenting the passing of the Community Concert series that gave us all so much pleasure for so many years, happily reports that the Music Study Club is "picking up the baton" to bring worthy artists to the area; and she will take particular pride in introducing Miss Rosen. Ann is the National Chairman of the Stillman Kelley Scholarship that gave its honor award last year to Miss Rosen. You are invited to attend this superb evening of music, beginning at 8:15 with tickets at $2.00 for adults, and only $1.00 for students!!

If music REALLY does have the magic power we've been told it has, then I assure you that there will not be a "savage breast" left to be soothed" by the end of this week!!! Thursday, the 16th of October . . . the Pocono Music Parents and the Top of the Poconos Rotary Clubs are sponsoring the President's Own . . . the United States Marine Band, in concert at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the school gym. Let me tell you, if you've never heard the Marine Band, you MUST!! It's that simple, and if you have a dry eye when THEY play the National Anthem, then you better examine your history books to get you back into the swing of being proud to BE an AMERICAN! I've seen the program and it is a "pops" concert of marches, symphonic overtures, a touch of Gershwin . . . and a salute to the music of today!! All in all . . . a rousing, glorious salute to America in its Bicentennial year!!

Saturday the 18th . . . WOW!! Fred Waring opens his 60th year in show business right in his own backyard with the Young Pennsylvanians and the VFW's . . . (Veterans of Fred Waring) taking their cue from the fabulous tunes of the film world, singing "Music . . . That's Entertainment, too!" Needless to say . . . Koehler Fieldhouse will "resound" with the famous Waring sound . . . so BE THERE for the opening strains at 8:30 p.m. with your ticket donation going to further the cause of the People To People Program at ESSC and the Music Parents of Stroudsburg High School. Tickets for both the Waring Concert AND the Marine Band Concert are to be found at our Gift Wrap on the Lower Level, and Wyckoff's are proud to be a small part of the Music Week that really puts the Poconos on the map when it comes to the BEST the world of music has to offer!!!

Movin' right along . . . you betcha' . . . with fall weather getting crispier . . . come see our super sweaters, cozy coats . . . AND that gorgeous gowns for the gala champagne reception for the VIP ticket holders at Shawnee Inn following The Waring Concert! Not only are big things happening here in the mountains, but we match it as Wyckoff's, where new things . . . exciting things are arriving every day!! See for yourself . . . visit us today at Wyckoff's . . . 100 years young and still growing!!!

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — In an effort to bridge certain gaps and ease potential stresses, you may find your tact stretched almost to the limit, but it will be worthwhile in the long run.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Some persons may try to enlist your help in putting over a dubious scheme. The Taurean is usually above such tactics, but be careful not to fall into a trap now. Some deceptive influences.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — As with Taurus, suggestions and situations could be deceptive now and it may be difficult to make sensible decisions, so stick with routine. Postpone unnecessary action.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Lunar influences beneficial. Take advantage by pressing on toward worthwhile objectives. Occupational matters especially favored.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Opponents of your ideas may have a point or two. Try for clarification. Some differences can be avoided, others ironed out.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — If things are not going as well as they should, do not let matters rest. Pitch in and try to get them back on the right track. A new offer may be worth looking into.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Some restrictions where personal relationships are concerned. In mid-morning, especially, avoid discussions which could upset associates.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Friends will make demands on your time, energy and cash. Be wary. One who is especially aggressive may pose a real problem. Counteract with tact, poise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — An unexpected encounter with the "right" person brightens your prospects for attaining an almost "impossible" goal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Your judgment may be clouded by emotionalism. Postpone making important decisions for 48 hours.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Certain events can act as guideposts for the future. Keep attuned to new trends and don't miss a trick.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — You will do yourself a big favor if you do not overtax yourself, and your "sixth sense" should tell you whether you ARE overdoing things or not. Curb spending.

YOU BORN TODAY: The Libran's outstanding traits are fair-mindedness, generosity, creativity and fearlessness in defending the rights of others. You are steadfast in your aims and determined in your climb toward success, but must be careful not to overtax yourself.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

The outcome of most hands depends largely on how the unseen cards are divided, and declarer's most important task is to shape his play so as to cater to the most likely division of the cards. In doing so, he naturally looks for the method of play that offers the best chance of making the contract.

Here is a typical case. West leads a heart and a count of winners tells South he has eleven sure tricks. He has basically two chances for a twelfth trick. One is to find the diamonds divided 3-3; the other is to find the spades divided 3-3.

The problem of which suit to play first is highly important. In the actual case, if South starts by cashing three diamonds to see how the suit is divided, he eventually goes down one. However, that would be the wrong way to play the hand. The correct approach is to tackle spades first.

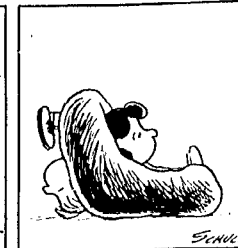

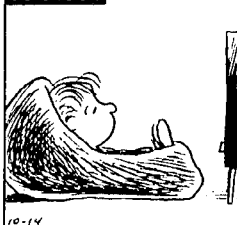

After winning the heart lead with the ace, declarer should cash his clubs and then play a low spade from both hands. Let's assume East takes the queen and returns a heart.

South wins with the king and cashes the A-K of spades to see where he stands. When the suit proves to be 3-3, his worries are all over and he takes the rest of the tricks.

If it develops that the spades are not 3-3, South still has a 3-3 diamond division (and possibly a squeeze) going for him.

The important point is that by leading spades first, South gets a chance to test his luck in both suits, but if he starts with diamonds first, he is not in position to take advantage of a 3-3 spade break even if that favorable division exists.

The compleat consumer

By BRUCE KOON
Dow Jones-Orfaway News

Clothes off the rack at a Boston thrift store are being sold like beef on the hoof — by the pound. The Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industrial Thrift Store sells its clothing for 97 cents a pound and linen for 59 cents a pound. The program has offered shoppers bargain prices and boosted sales for the store.

The 97-cents a pound apparel includes slacks, gym suits, shirts, dresses, underwear, skirts, socks, winter wear, and bikinis. Linens at 59 cents a pound include towels, sheets, pillow cases, bedspreads, curtains, and tablecloths. A pair of dungarees weighs about a pound and costs 97 cents; a coat might weigh four pounds and sell for $3.88; a polyester dress weighing half a pound costs 49 cents.

Electric cars

The two most widely sold electric cars available in the United States are sharply criticized on safety grounds by Consumers Union, publishers of Consumer Reports.

The research group says that the acceleration and handling of the Elcar 2000 and Citicar SV-48 are not capable of responding to emergency road situations. They also do not provide adequate crash protection, Consumers Union says. A full report on the two electric cars appears in the October issue of Consumer Reports.

Aerosol tire inflator

Defective aerosol cans of "Instant Spare," a portable tire inflator, have been recalled by their Ohio manufacturing firm and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The defect in the product could cause the cans to explode if subjected to the heat of direct sunlight. Some 35,000 cans, marked J103, were sold between Sept. 10 and Nov. 26, 1973. For more information, write Taylor Made Products, Inc., 3200 West Market St., Akron, Ohio 44313; or call 216-867-6502.

Mail fraud

You can get a free Consumer Information Center booklet that tells you you don't get something for nothing. The booklet, put out by the postal service, is called "Mail Fraud Laws." It warns consumers against different types of mail frauds, such as the promise of an "exciting, high-paying job" that is a lure for a fake correspondence school. For a copy of the booklet, write Consumer Information, Dept. 54, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Coin guides

Coin collectors may be interested in two new books: "The Official 1976 Black Book of United States Coins," edited by Milton Dinkin, Irwin Cohen, and Robert Morton (House of Collectibles, P.O. Box D, Florence, Ala. 35630; $1.50; 192 pages); and the "1976 Official Guide, United States Paper Money," by Theodore Keem (House of Collectibles; $1.50; 192 pages). Both books contain the most current buying and selling prices of all U.S. coins and paper monies.

KNIT ONE, PURL TWO — Kim Farry, 11, member of the Yarn and Needles Knitting Club in Cherry Valley, works on her next 4-H project. Her mother, Mrs. James Farry, examines the hat Kim made this summer.

4-H'ers learn knitting craft

STROUDSBURG — What do you call making fabric with yarn on two or more needles? Ask one of the 26 Monroe County 4-H'ers enrolled in the knitting project.

The 4-H project, "Let's Learn to Knit", is gaining in popularity in Monroe County. The 4-H'ers learn how to use leisure time constructively and get much satisfaction from their results.

In the "Let's Learn to Knit" project young people ages 8 to 19 learn first how to make a knitting basket. Kim's is pictured in the above photograph. The lessons follow with an explanation of knitting tools, how to cast on, how to knit and purl, and how to sew seams together.

As each project phase is completed, a new and more difficult phase is begun and new stitches and techniques are learned.

Some County 4-H'ers have advanced over the years to phase VII. In this phase, 4-H'ers learn to combine knitting and fabric by making a complete outfit.

This year in 4-H, Mrs. Farry, as she inspected Kim's first 4-H project commented, "If only I knew how to do this."

If you're between the ages of 8-19 and would like to join a 4-H knitting club, contact one of the following leaders: Mrs. Sue Anderson, Effort; Mrs. Donna Clarke, Stroudsburg; Miss Sarah Davis, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Bonnie Shick, R. D. No. 3, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Joanne Kostenbader, Cherry Valley, or the Extension Office at 421-6430. If you're interested in becoming a 4-H leader, contact the Extension Office.

4-H has so many opportunities for today's youth.

Junior women raise funds

STROUDSBURG — The YMCA will be more beautiful as a result of the efforts of the Stroudsburg Junior Women's Club. The group will hold a hoagie sale on Friday, Nov. 14 to raise money for this project and to fulfill its pledge of $1977 to the General Hospital of Monroe County for the purchase of an isolette for the pediatrics ward.

The hoagies will be sold for 90 cents each and may be ordered by calling Mrs. Judy Miller, 421-6233.

Another fund raising event will be a bake sale to be held on Friday, Nov. 7 at the Northeastern Bank in East Stroudsburg, starting at 10 a.m. Donations received will be used to support the club's projects.

At its annual covered dish dinner held on Oct. 7 at the Stroud Mansion House, the club heard Mrs. Jaggerd and Mrs. Dela Shields of Flowerland speak on sand terrariums, their basic designs and the care of plants and soil. A terrarium was presented as a gift at the conclusion of the program.

The following coming activities were announced: executive board meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. at the Mansion House; fall county meeting, Pine Knob Lodge, Oct. 29, with afternoon registration at 4 p.m. and evening registration at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30; and a Halloween party for members at Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg, on Saturday, Nov. 1, from 2-4 p.m.

Those interested in attending the fall county meeting should make reservations by Oct. 21 by calling Mrs. Rovito at 421-9043.

Any women between the ages of 18-40 who would like to join this organization are asked to call Mrs. Linda Stevens, membership chairman, at 424-5416.

Choose quality

By MRS. DAWN OLSON
Extension Home Economist
Cooperative Extension Service
Choose sewing shears for the job you expect them to do, and you'll be more satisfied with the results. For example, most seamstresses like dressmaking shears for cutting out garments. They use smaller shears or scissors with thin blades and sharp tips for trimming.

Shears have one small handle for the thumb and a larger handle for inserting two or three fingers for better control and leverage. Scissors are smaller and are made with handles of the same size.

Use straight blade dressmaker shears for cutting. Pinking shears are designed for finishing seams. Because it's difficult to cut accurately with pinking shears, don't use them to cut out a garment.

Scissors care

Dressmaker shears have bent handles so the blades will slide along the table and allow the fabric and pattern to lie flat. They are available in lengths from 6 to 12 inches. The 7 or 8 inch length is preferred by most dressmakers, but choose the length and weight that seems most comfortable and manageable. Left-handed shears are available, too.

The best shears or scissors are made of high carbon crucible steel. Check to see if the blades are fastened by a genuine screw or a rivet. Rivets loosen easily and can't be readjusted satisfactorily. Shears should cut sharply from near the back of the blades right up to the points.

It's impossible to tell the quality of the metal by looking at it. You will have to depend on the reliability of the dealer and the manufacturer. Buy the best you can afford, and treat them with respect.

With proper care, good shears can last almost a lifetime. Keep them for fabric cutting only, as frequent use on paper can dull the blades. After using shears, wipe the blades with a soft cloth to remove lint. Occasionally, place a drop of sewing machine oil along the inner surface of the blades.

If rust spots appear, remove them with fine sandpaper or steel wool and then apply oil. When not in use, store shears with blades closed and protected with a plastic or leather case.

Unless you really know what you're doing, leave the sharpening of blades to a professional or return them to the manufacturer when sharpening is needed.

Monroe candidates talk about possible tax increase

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Two of the candidates for Monroe County commissioner, a Republican and a Democrat, said Monday it's possible the millage rate in the county may have to be increased next year to cover expenses.

The other two candidates, said they think the county can make do with its current eight-mill tax rate.

Stuart Pipher, Democratic candidate, said he will have to take a look at the overall picture of the county's financial status but suspects the millage rate will increase by a "mill or two."

Pipher said that costs in the delay of the transfer of Pleasant Valley Manor and reduction of revenue from Act 319 will be major factors in the county's budget.

"I'm not going to say there won't be a tax increase and then have to eat my words. I'd rather tell the truth now," Pipher stated.

Pipher said he hasn't been asked to join in any of the budget meetings of the commissioners to take place this month and next, but said he will keep in touch with the proposed budget through Democratic board member Arlington Martin.

Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, a Republican incumbent, said it's "possible there might be a small increase" in the tax rate but added, "It's too early to tell."

She said the county could be helped through its financial problem if it receives about $192,000 in reimbursement due for 1974 expenses at Pleasant Valley Manor. She said the county also hopes to get money from the state to cover patients at Stroud Manor and said that could be up to $100,000.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the county will know prior to election day, Nov. 4, when it can expect the reimbursements which will influence preparing the 1976 budget.

Mrs. Shukaitis said she intends to have any newly elected commissioners participate in the budget meetings after Nov. 4 since it will be their budget after they take office.

Commissioner Martin, a Democrat seeking his third term, said he sees no specific problems with next year's budget and added he has "no idea if the millage rate will go up."

Martin said the commissioners need a list of projected expenses by county offices for 1976. Those projections will be coming into the commissioners this month and next.

"I doubt very much that we'll have the figures before the election," Martin said. "But if we can do it before, we will," he pledged.

Martin said the commissioners' budget meetings are open to the public and anyone is welcome. He said he would be willing to listen to suggestions from the other candidates in making up the 1976 budget.

Jesse D. Pierson, Republican candidate, said he doesn't think the tax rate will have to increase "on the basis of what I've seen."

Pierson explained that he hasn't studied the budgetary needs of the county and isn't aware of what expenses are mandated already.

"What we have to do is look carefully at handouts and things that are not a positive necessity, fat."

Pierson said the transfer of Pleasant Valley Manor to a non-profit corporation will offset any increases in the 1976 budget which would be ordinarily necessitated by rising costs.

Pierson said he has not been invited by the current commissioners to sit in on their budget meetings but would attend if invited.

He said he hasn't asked to attend because he believes that would be "too forward" a presumption on his part. "I'm sometimes embarrassed by showing up at commissioners' meetings," he said.

'Too drunk to remember'

Robbery conspirators convicted

STROUDSBURG — A Monroe County Court jury deliberated about 30 minutes Monday before returning guilty verdicts against two county residents charged with conspiracy and robbery.

John E. Bowman, 17, of Swiftwater and Robert T. Gray, 20, of Cresco were given seven days in which to appeal the verdict.

During testimony Monday, Bowman admitted robbing Muldoon's Sunoco Service in Swiftwater in the early morning hours of July 6 but said he was very intoxicated.

Gray testified Friday that he did not recall the robbery because he was too intoxicated.

Bowman testified that he and Gray had been drinking beer and tequila most of the day. He said he didn't remember too well but "I guess we got the idea that we'd rob a gas station."

Bowman said they dropped the idea and went to his house and drank a couple more beers and then went to rob Muldoon's.

Harold Hardenstine, the attendant on duty that night, testified Friday that he was in the bathroom when two men with plastic garbage bags over their heads entered and one pointed a shotgun at him and said hand over the money.

He gave them the money,

Defense attorneys George Westervelt and John Lawler told the six-man, six-woman jury that the defendants were too intoxicated to form the intent to commit the crime of robbery.

Dist. Atty. James F. Marsh called Gray's testimony "a case of convenient memory. He remembers everything except the robbery."

Marsh asked the jury to consider that if the pair drank all they said they did, more than a case of beer and tequila, "They wouldn't be able to walk."

In other court proceedings, Douglas William of Stroudsburg pleaded guilty to driving under the influence.

Security guard missing with patrol car, $400

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter

BUCK HILL FALLS — Local, state and federal law enforcement officials are seeking the whereabouts of a 38-year-old Buck Hill Inn security guard who disappeared Sunday after apparently taking the inn's patrol car.

Thomas J. Sweeney, whose address was given as Richmond, Va., was last seen getting out of the resort's station wagon patrol car on Crystal Street, East Stroudsburg.

Sweeney, in addition to being wanted for questioning in connection with the missing car and $400 in cash from the inn, is wanted on a federal warrant from Los Angeles, Calif.

A FBI spokesman in Philadelphia said Monday the federal warrant, of an undisclosed nature, was issued Aug. 30, 1974. In the alarm issued by the FBI, Sweeney is to be regarded as "suicidal and dangerous."

The six-foot-four-inch, 265 pound, brown haired and blue eyed man had been an employee of the resort since August 13, according to Barrett Township Police.

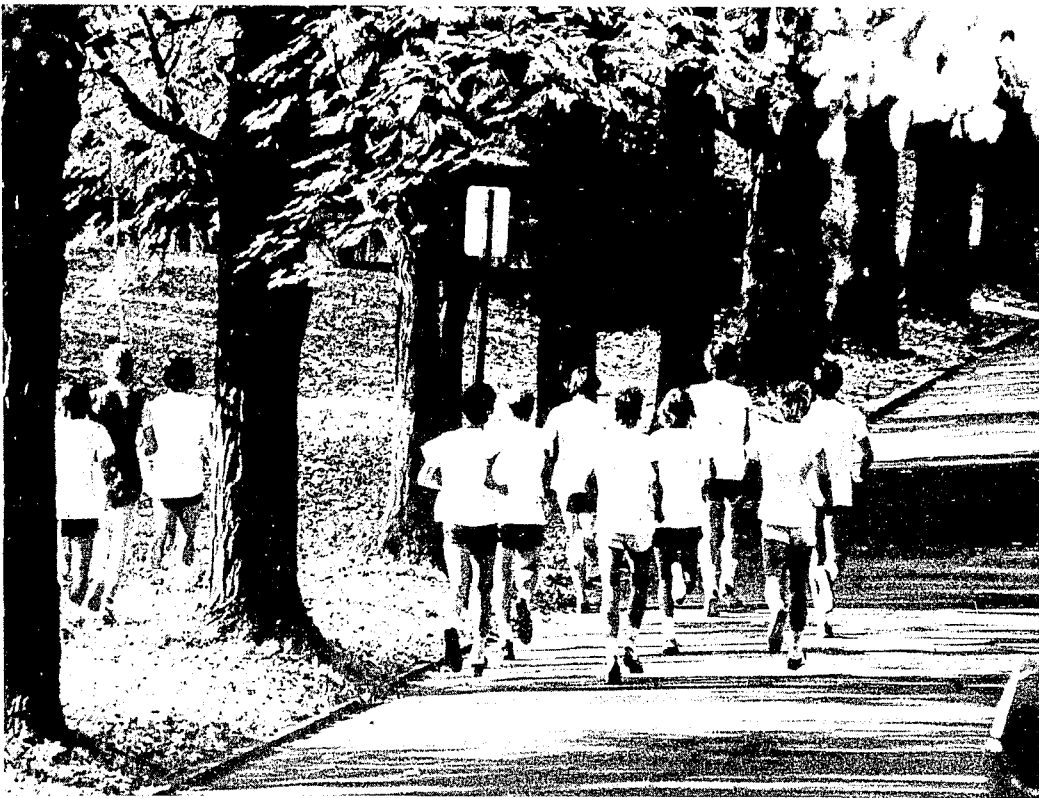

Police said the inn's patrol car was first spotted on Crystal St., East Stroudsburg around 4 p.m. Sunday and was reported missing by a Buck Hill security guard at 1:30 a.m. Monday. It was found by East Stroudsburg police.

Sweeney was hired to be a cook at the resort, according to Buck Hill Manager C. Marshall Reese. He was transferred to the security section at his own request, Reese said, and was in the process of being checked out.

"We had sent letters to check his references and have his fingerprints," Reese said. "It's a little late now."

Sweeney was one of four members of the inn's security force.

Drug council passes on pot vote

STROUDSBURG — The Tri-County Drug and Alcohol Council (D & A) voted Monday night not to take a stand as a board on a proposed decriminalization of marijuana.

The board voted 4-2 not to make a group statement because it felt a statement might hurt the clinic's programs.

However, most board members said they intended to write letters to Dr. Richard Horman, executive director of the Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse, to express personal feelings.

Horman released a report in July that recommended that marijuana laws be decriminalized and penalties be reduced.

In August the board expressed mixed feelings about Horman's recommendation and requested D&A specialist Mike Nesoter to gather materials for it to study.

Chairman James Colbert began discussion of the last agenda item by suggesting Horman had written his report after talking only with people who agreed with him.

He said someone who wants to take a stand either for or against marijuana can find enough people to support his opinion.

He added that calls and letters opposing Horman's recommendation had been received after his July press conference.

Nesoter said D & A administrator Stanley Goehring felt a statement for or against Horman's decision by the board could hurt the clinics program.

Nesoter said Goehring thought an opposing opinion might turn away some people from services while a statement supporting Horman might alienate others, such as law enforcement officials.

Mental Health Mental Retardation administrator Thomas

Foley agreed with Goehring, stating the program hasn't been a "true success."

Some people the program is trying to help look at it with suspicions that records will be turned over to narcotics officials, Foley stated.

Colbert disagreed, stating that no one has ever been reported to the authorities if they came to the clinic for help.

Board member Mrs. Sue Allen and Mrs. Cherry Rahn disagreed with Colbert, suggesting the program may not have reached young drug users.

"What if there's one group that hasn't shown up, hasn't shown its face in here?" Mrs. Allen said.

Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Rahn, Mrs. Helen Drabic and Joseph Paluck voted against making a board statement while Colbert and John C. Mills voted in favor.

Before the vote, Colbert stated he thought board members who felt marijuana should be decriminalized shouldn't be on the board.

Residents challenge developer

DINGMANS FERRY — To avoid litigation, members of the Pocono Mountain Lake Forest Community Association will meet with a Pike County developer to discuss his alleged failure to meet sales promises.

Residents charge that J.J. Fiume, the developer, has failed to complete a water system, maintain roads and build tennis courts and two swimming pools in the Delaware Township development.

Neither Fiume nor his attorneys could be reached for comment Monday.

Another meeting is scheduled for Monday, October 20 with Fiume and his lawyers from the Milford law firm of Finan, Beecher, Wagner and Rose, according to Margaret Voltz, vice president of the community assn.

The association submitted a list of complaints to Fiume's attorney, John Klemeyer, two and a half weeks ago and then picketed the development last weekend, Mrs. Voltz said.

A list of residents' complaints include:

- Inadequate surface gravel on the main roads. There are about 23 miles of road in the development and residents claim many are filled with potholes and do not have street signs.
- An incomplete water system. Two of the wells dug for the water system are sulfurous and can not be used without an expensive filtration system, according to residents. Mrs.

Voltz said the developer's offering statement said the water system was to be completed in 1973.

— Construction of tennis courts and a swimming pool that is only partially completed. Also the restoration of a clubhouse and surrounding grounds.

— And access to 100 feet of usable beach area.

Mrs. Voltz maintains that items listed were either promised by salesmen verbally or in advertisements.

Pocono Mountain Lake Forests has about 975 lots ranging from a quarter acre to over an acre.

Mrs. Voltz said about 850 lots have been sold and 50 lots have been built on. There are only 13 full-time residents, she said.

Dr. Moiz Mohyuddin said anyone who had contacted the disease would show symptoms within a week.

Disease danger ends

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 14-year-old Pocono Mountain student hospitalized for spinal meningitis was listed in fair condition Monday at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The unidentified girl was admitted to the hospital Thursday with what was diagnosed as a meningococcal infection of the blood.

A hospital spokesman said the disease is contagious only by physical contact and all possibly infected people were being treated last Friday.

Joint purchasing plan explored

EAST STROUDSBURG — The "cheaper by the dozen" theory will be tested by the Pocono Mountains Council of Governments (COG) in hopes of saving tax dollars.

The cooperative voluntary association of five municipalities — Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Stroud Township, Smithfield Township and Delaware Water Gap — agreed Monday to try joint purchasing of gasoline and fuel oil.

The group hopes volume purchasing will result in a lower price than any of the five could attain on its own.

Chairman John Zukowski

said he'd get engineers to draw up the specifications and advertise for bids.

Each municipality's governing body would then have to vote to agree to go along with the joint purchasing.

The COG compiled figures of annual usage of gasoline for each municipality and learned the five use nearly 70,000 gallons of gasoline per year.

After much discussion, it was decided to solicit bids for regular gasoline and number two fuel oil.

The group discussed joint bidding for bulk salt, but decided to wait until they see how the gasoline and fuel oil bids work out since they would have to build a storage facility for the salt.

Donald Gage, East Stroudsburg borough manager, suggested the COG become involved in assessing a regional sewerage plan developed through the Monroe County General Authority.

The regional sewerage plan would affect all COG members, plus Middle Smithfield Township.

Zukowski said he didn't think the COG had enough money in its budget to do that.

'Stick with me, Pumpkin, and I'll make you a star'

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — People are adaptable creatures when it comes to wild animals. They will accept almost anything including a tiger in their tank or a cartoon cat chomping sugar-frosted flakes.

People on Foster Hill Road, Milford Township aren't really that different. After more than a month, they have generally accepted Pumpkin, a 250-pound Siberian tiger who is bound for stardom today.

Originally, neighbors sought a court injunction to have Pumpkin removed, fearing that the animal posed a threat to children and nearby horse stables.

A compromise settlement has been reached, however, that provided Pumpkin with stricter supervision. It also stipulated that the cat must be removed after its owner's lease on the property is up in June.

Pumpkin's owner and trainer, Pete Renzo, says he will use the 16-month-old cat to make an educational film on the Siberian tiger. George Johnson, a naturalist and wildlife photographer, will begin filming the picture in the Foster Hill area today, Renzo said.

The main theme of the film concerns "how man is going to have to protect endangered species in order to preserve them for future generations," Renzo explained.

"Pumpkin, for instance, is one of only 200 Siberian tigers left in the world," he said.

Man's encroachment of the wild animal's environment, poaching and farming are seen as the reasons for placing over 2,000 animals on the endangered species list.

"In the future wild animals and man will have to learn to co-exist . . . our film will try to show this," Renzo said.

"Pumpkin is being used because he has been raised in a captive environment since birth. It's not cruel to keep him in such an environment because he prefers to be there. He knows no other environment," he said.

Renzo's theories on animal and man co-existence have been put to the test with surrounding neighbors on Foster Hill Road.

Mrs. Judy Segal one of the neighbors, says "everything is fine now."

"I've seen him (Pumpkin) and he's still too big for where he is, but Pete has been very nice and has followed all the regulations," Mrs. Segal said.

Another neighbor, Mrs. Doris Dallow, said "we've adapted to the situation."

"Frankly, I did not consider the tiger a personal threat, but I understand how other people could," she said.

Mrs. Dallow said she has seen the tiger and described it "as very appealing."

Mrs. Mary Emanuell admits she has not fully accepted the situation. "but there is really nothing else we can do."

"We felt there were too many kids in the area. The kids, themselves, are thrilled by it all. All the kids go over there and they really like the guy (Pete), Mrs. Emanuell said.

"It's really hard though to have the kids running over there all the time," she noted.

For Ralph Rothenback, the tiger as a potential source of danger to children and horses was the main problem.

"I didn't know the people and had nothing against them."

I was just concerned about people's safety," he said.

"I've adapted to it, though. There are a lot of things that shouldn't be like the motorcycles running up and down the street, but you just have to put up with it sometime," Rothenback said.

Renzo said when he first came to the area he didn't realize people lived so close to the property he rented.

"I can understand people's original reaction, especially since they didn't know what we were doing, but after they found out their primary concern was that the animal was secure," Renzo said.

"A lot of the people have been over to see what we are doing and that has helped," he said.

Renzo and Johnson will begin filming Pumpkin today in an effort to catch the tiger in a natural environment. Renzo, who works with Pumpkin six to eight hours a day, said the tiger is slowly becoming acclimated to sights and sounds in nature.

The film should be completed in a year, according to Renzo.

Conference convenes

STROUDSBURG — The 92nd annual conference of the Bible Fellowship Church convened Monday at Pinebrook Junior College with a keynote address by the Rev. Carl C. Castle, academic dean of the school.

Rev. Castle took his address from the Book of Acts and talked about the necessity of uniting the body of Christ. About 100 pastors and delegates from the 5,000 member church attended Monday's session.

On the agenda for the conference this year, in addition to the usual elections and reports, are discussions on possible stances the 45 congregation church might take on alcohol as a beverage and divorce as it relates to the church membership.

Woody Petchel had a chance to do some gloating Saturday after Penn State buried West Virginia and Arthur Owens. But he didn't.

"Artie's a good friend of mine," Petchel said after a game in which he gained 122 yards in 29 carries and Owens, hampered somewhat by a damaged left shoulder, could gain but 10 yards in four carries.

"This was no grudge match," Petchel added. "Artie's a fine runner. Back home they like to build it up like it's a big grudge match, a personal rivalry. It's not. It's just a game."

Pen Argyl's Petchel and Stroudsburg's Owens had played against each other before, with Owens getting the better of the statistics. Petchel had a huge advantage Saturday, but to his credit he let it pass.

"I went out on the field after the game to see him but I couldn't find him," Petchel said. Owens had left the field immediately after the game. Petchel hadn't known that Owens had hurt his shoulder in the first period.

Valuable lesson

There is a valuable lesson to be learned from what Petchel said at his crowded cubicle in the Penn State locker room after the game. We all could learn from it.

"People don't realize that there is always someone better than you," Petchel said, explaining his feelings on being listed as a second team back. "Once you do, you're all right. When (Rich) Mauti took over, I felt the coaches were doing something that was good for the team."

Mauti took over earlier in the year as the starter at tailback, but he pulled a hamstring in his right leg Thursday and had to give up the ghost after just two plays Saturday when it went out on him again. Petchel came in and after a brief spell to get a cut chin looked over, he took advantage of the break.

"I knew I could get a shot at a game like this if I kept going," he said. "Something good will always happen if you keep going."

But, even though he had a super game and nearly doubled his rushing totals for the year in five previous games, Petchel knows he'll have to fight to stay there.

"You have to fight to stay in there," he agreed. "You always have to be conscious of the fact that you can be replaced." Spoken like a wise young man.

Cavaliers were impressive

East Stroudsburg went into Saturday night's game with Pocono Mountain looking for two things: First, revenge for an 18-12 loss last year and second, a victory to keep a perfect record. They got both.

"We were wanting to make up for last year," said Cavaliers' coach Dick Merring, "and a great deal of the kids really were ready to play. In the second half (after a 6-0 first half lead) we really came out to play."

In that third period, the Cavaliers scored 26 points, a showing Merring called "the best quarter of offensive football for us this year. The Bangor game was a better total game, but we were really pleased with the defense again, too. We did what we set out to do: Stop the drives and take the inside game away."

The Cardinals fooled the Cavaliers with two different passes but the third and fourth times they tried it Greg Beck intercepted. "It was a good pass against our defense," Merring conceded, "but Greg just played it properly and made the interceptions."

And now East Stroudsburg is 5-0. Merring's a realist and knows he can't look for six or seven. Not yet, anyway.

"I had hopes for it," he said, "but I was worried about Wilson. I never look for being 5-0. I just take one game at a time and right now, all I'm concerned about is Notre Dame (also 5-0 and a foe Saturday at Green Pond). They look very explosive."

Mounties turned loose

Tied at the half with Pen Argyl Friday night, 6-6, Stroudsburg went away from somewhat conservative football in the second half and it won the game for the Mounties.

"One thing we did differently," Mountie coach Fred Ross said, "was turned our people loose on defense in the second half."

"We wanted to play the fullback at the line and beat the trap play by not penetrating because Pen Argyl is a great trap team. Plus we were rusty from not playing for two weeks."

Offensively, the key was possession. The offense had the ball more than in some other games. "We just had a chance to get the ball more," Ross said. "The kids played with more emphasis on offense." Especially Bob Tilwick, who had 150 yards rushing.

Ross also had some kudos for Mark Fetherman, saying "he was outstanding all night, on offense and defense and on specialty teams, too. He played very well. He's a real good football player and a team leader."

"He's the gung-ho guy of the team," Ross added. "I can't say enough good things about him."

Victory keeps Washington in Eastern Division race

'Skins outlast Cardinals, 27-17

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins scored a touchdown off a fake field goal attempt and rookie Mike Thomas plunged for two more Monday night to produce a 27-17 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a nationally televised struggle.

The surprise pass from placekicker holder Joe Theismann to John Pergine, a linebacker used on the specialty team, was good for 30 yards in the third period and gave the Redskins a 17-10 lead shortly after St. Louis' Terry Metcalf had tied the contest with a 93-yard kickoff return to open the second half.

With the score again tied 17-17, Thomas, whose brother Earl plays for the Cards, climaxed a 76-yard Washington drive by diving over from the one with the winning score early in the final quarter. The rookie from Nevada-Las Vegas wound up with 100 yards on 18 carries.

Washington's Mark Moseley followed Thomas' score by kicking a field goal from 34 yards to sew up the contest.

The victory kept the Redskins, 3-1, on the heels of the undefeated Dallas Cowboys in their NFC Eastern Division race but dropped the Cards two games off the pace.

explosive third period and tied the contest at 10-10.

The Redskins, however, countered with the fake field touchdown on the pass from third-string quarterback Theismann to Pergine, who had never had a reception or a touchdown in his seven-year career. Washington was faced with a fourth-and-five situation on the Cardinal 30 when Moseley dropped back, apparently to kick.

After being caught flat-footed, the Cardinals rebounded a minute and a half later when Jim Hart teamed with Mel Gray on a 48-yard scoring shot to deadlock the contest, 17-17, going into the final period.

But Bill Kilmer marched Washington downfield, completing five of five passes, and Thomas plunged into the end zone with the game-winning points.

Thomas' second-period touchdown, after a Mike Bass interception, enabled the Redskins to forge to a 10-3 halftime lead. Bass picked off a Hart pass to give the Redskins possession on the Cardinal 38 and after Kilmer passed 12 yards to Jerry Smith, Thomas did the rest almost alone.

His first pro touchdown broke a 3-3 tie set up when Moseley and St. Louis' Jim Bakken matched 47-yard field goals following fumble recoveries.

Desire pays off for Palubinski

Special to The Record

EAST STROUDSBURG — Three weeks ago, Tom Palubinski was a second string offensive end for East Stroudsburg State College who had seen only limited varsity action.

Now, Palubinski is not only a starter for the Warriors but he is the leading scorer in the Pennsylvania Conference Eastern Division and is second in receiving.

"Tom is an example of a young man who just hung in there and when he had the opportunity, he made it count," said Denny Douds, ESSC head coach.

Palubinski got his chance entering the West Chester game in the second quarter. He responded by catching three passes for 61 yards and the tying touchdown in a 24-20 victory.

The 5-11, 170-pound sophomore then grabbed five passes for 119 yards and two touchdowns in a 35-7 romp over Kutztown and had three catches for 87 yards and a TD in last Saturday's 17-7 win over Cheyney.

"Hard work and concentration are what have made Tom successful," indicated Mike Metzler, the Warriors' receiver coach and junior varsity coordinator.

"He works hard in practice on his patterns and positioning himself on pass plays. Then he concentrates on the ball until it is actually in his hands. He is fast but not super fast and he is not really big. But he has great hands and he has caught everything near him," Metzler continued.

Tom Palubinski

Palubinski has averaged more than 20 yards per reception with a total of 11 catches for 267 yards. He has combined with quarterback Mike Terwilliger on touchdown passes of 29, 53, 12 and 59 yards.

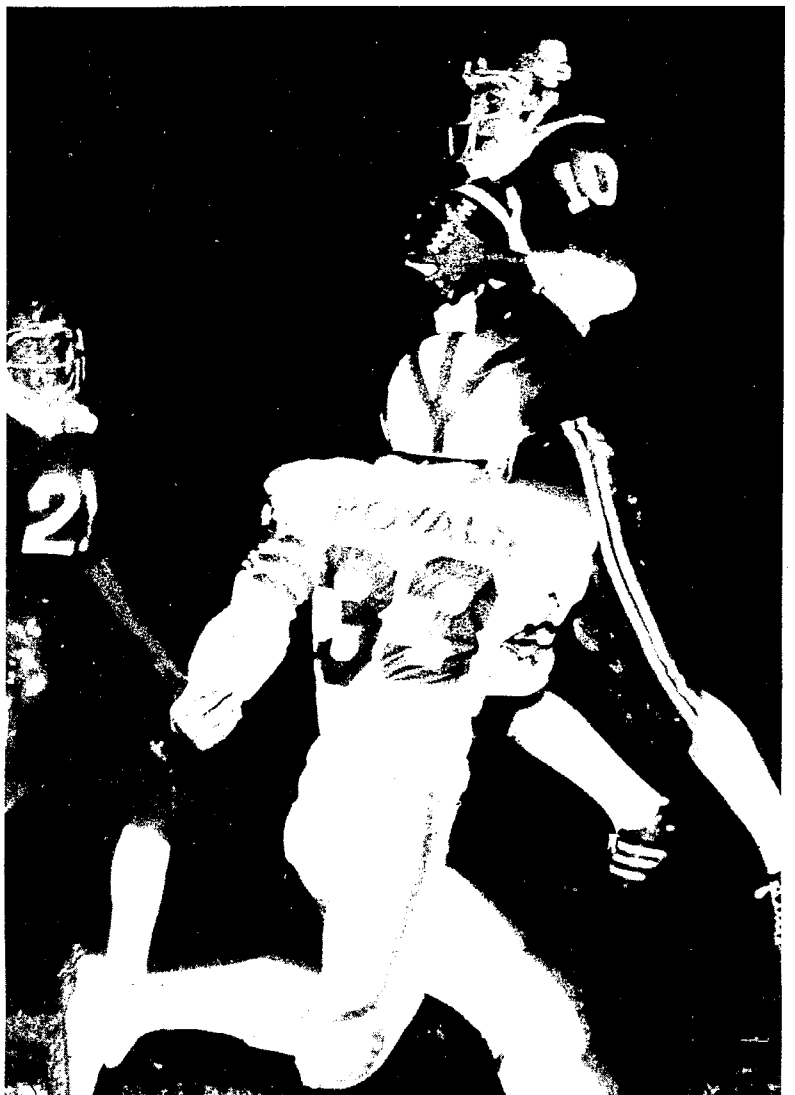

He leads the conference with 24 points in three games for an average of eight points per game. He is averaging 3.7 receptions per contest, only slightly behind leader Dave Butlaro of Kutztown, who has a 3.8 average.

"You can call it tenacity or perseverance or even patience. There were players ahead of him on the depth chart before the season began but he didn't let it stop him. He kept ready, impressed the other coaches in practice and did the job when it counted," Douds stated.

Palubinski also proved himself at Hamburg High School after missing his junior year because of a head injury. He won All-Berks County and All-Inter County League honors at end. He also averaged 13.7 points in basketball and was a first team All-Berks Western Division infielder in baseball.

As an ESSC freshman, he was a starter on the junior varsity team and was ticketed for reserve play on the varsity this year until the West Chester game.

"One of the thrills in coaching is watching a young man such as Tom go from being a reserve to a starter to a star. He can take pride in his accomplishments which may be even more meaningful to him because he was proving himself to other people," Douds concluded.

UNINTENDED RECEIVER — Phillipsburg Catholic defensive halfback Mike Nehila (10) picks off a pass intended for Pius X's Mark Albanese (33) to thwart a Royals' scoring threat late in the first half. Nehila intercepted two passes and returned one for a touchdown as the Terriers blanked the Royals, 18-0.

Royals run out of tackles

Terriers blank crippled Royals

By JOE DEVIVO
Record Sports Writer

BANGOR — Have any friends who are unemployed defensive tackles? Send them over to see Lenny Litz. He could use a handful.

Injuries depleted Litz's entire stock of tackles Monday night and made it a lot easier for Phillipsburg Catholic to post an 18-0 victory over Pius X.

Statistics

Passes	3-7	2-9
Interceptions	3	2
Punts	3-26	3-35
Fumbles-fumbles lost	5-1	1-1
Penalties	3-35	6-70

The current injury situation concerns Litz even more than the fact his Royals have now dropped four straight games and are in danger of having their first losing season since 1962.

"We were just crippled," Litz said in the locker room. "The whole second half we went with a Mickey Mouse defense. We had an end and a nut man playing the tackles."

The Royals came into Monday's Homecoming contest with tackle Sal Cerami sidelined with a broken foot. Before the night was over, John Bonisese, Vince Hildabrant, and Mike Burke were on the sidelines.

Hildabrant (knee) and Burke (shoulder) suffered the worst injuries. Both were taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County for treatment.

"We couldn't play our normal defense," Litz said. "The people we had to put in were inexperienced. The kids we had gave 100 per cent. But we had to gamble on every play."

Mistakes by Pius enabled Phillipsburg Catholic to score all three of its touchdowns. Defensive back Mike Nehila picked off a Craig Hapfel pass in the second quarter and raced untouched the final 45 yards to give the Terriers a 6-0 lead at the half.

The Royals threatened to tie the game at the start of the third period when, behind the running of Mark Albanese, Steve Goffredo and Tony Casciano, they moved to the Terriers' 34 yard line.

But on fourth and five, Dana Rounsaville intercepted another Hapfel pass to thwart the drive. Jim Schreffler, who ripped the Royals' patchwork defense for 108 yards on 20 carries, moved his team in position for a one-yard TD sneak by quarterback Jim Boylan.

Schreffler added an insurance score in the fourth period after Phillipsburg Catholic recovered an Albanese fumble at the Pius 14.

Phillipsburg Catholic's defense, which had given up 50 points in its last ballgame, was tough against the Royals all night.

Pius was held to just three first downs and 46 yards rushing in the first half and finished with 111 total offensive yards.

The injury situation at tackle also hurt the Royals' offensive attack, since the tackles go both ways.

"When John Bonisese and Burke got hurt we had to run all our plays to the right side," Litz said. "They stacked up on us and eventually we couldn't move at all."

Casciano wound up as the Royals' top ballcarrier with 50 yards on 13 carries and Goffredo added 42 yards on 13 attempts.

Terriers' coach Ray Mantoni wasn't really too surprised at his team's defensive showing.

"We thought we had a decent defense," he said. "I just can't explain how we could get blown off the field with long runs one week and have a shut-out the next."

Litz's lone reason for optimism was the fact the Royals don't have to play this weekend.

"We have a week off," he said. "Maybe that'll help us."

SWIFTWATER — East Stroudsburg scored touchdowns in the first and fourth quarters Monday to defeat Pocono Mountain, 14-6, and remain undefeated in junior varsity football play.

In a second game, Bill Carrescia scored three touchdowns as Stroudsburg hammered Pen Argyl, 39-0.

The Cavaliers upped their record to 6-0 as Todd Repsher caught a seven-yard scoring pass from Scott Pettinato and Jim Booth ran one yard after Doug Shook recovered a Pocono Mountain fumble at the Cardinals' one. Shawn Parker ran one yard for the Cardinals' touchdown.

Carrescia ran 86 and 46 yards and caught a 25-yard touchdown pass from Scott Mery as the Mounties scored in every period. Mery ran 11 yards, Mark Setar two yards and Jack Nichols 25 yards for the other Stroudsburg scores.

Mark Langelli ran for two points after Setar's score and Mery kicked a conversion after his touchdown run.

Artificial surface looms as World Series key

CINCINNATI (UPI) — An artificial playing surface so familiar to National Leaguers, but still uncommon in the American League, loomed as the key factor in game No. 3 of the World Series Tuesday night with the hometown Cincinnati Reds ready to show Boston how well their Big Red Machine operates on a fast track.

The Reds, their running game greatly impeded in the first two games of the series in Fenway Park by muddy conditions on a natural turf infield, welcomed the return to Riverfront Stadium where they felt they could successfully employ the exciting style of play that helped produce 108 regular season victories and three straight triumphs over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL playoffs.

With the teams splitting the first two games of the best of seven series, the Reds will send right-hander Gary Nolan to the mound against Red Sox right-hander Rick Wise, a former National Leaguer who pitched two of the best games of his career at Riverfront Stadium when he was with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Wise, a 19-game winner this season, pitched a no-hitter against Cincinnati in 1971 at Riverfront and two years later had a no-hitter into the ninth inning before Joe Morgan broke it up with a single for the lone Reds' hit.

Reds manager Sparky Anderson, in an effort to take advantage of the faster playing surface, will make a few minor changes in his batting order for the third game. Ken Griffey, whose double beat the Red Sox on Sunday, moves into the No. 2 spot, with Morgan dropping to third and Johnny Bench to fifth.

"It gives us much more speed at the top of the order," said Anderson. "With Pete (Rose) leading off, you cannot double up Griffey on a routine grounder. Then you're going to have a man on first with Morgan up. That sets the stage to force them to go against the book. With Griffey on first, you have to be aware of his stealing and the pitchers had better be throwing fastballs or they're in trouble."

Morgan, who drove in 94 runs for the Reds this year, is predominately a fastball hitter.

Anderson also announced that left-hander Fred Norman would pitch the fourth game if the Reds win Tuesday night. However, if the Reds should lose, Anderson said he probably would go with southpaw Don Gullett, loser of the first game.

With the next three games scheduled for Riverfront Stadium, the Reds will have a decided advantage. Cincinnati won a record 64 games at home during the regular season and defeated Pittsburgh twice here during the playoffs.

In addition, the Red Sox are not used to playing on artificial surfaces. There is only one park in the AL — Kansas City — that has a complete AstroTurf field. The Chicago White Sox have an AstroTurf infield, but dirt basepaths and a regular grass outfield. All other parks in the AL have natural turf fields.

"Playing on a field where there is no mud on the basepaths will make things much different for me," said Morgan, the Reds' premier base-stealer, who was unable to get his footing on the rain-soaked ground at Fenway.

"This is a major league ball park; it doesn't have any freak things, like that left field wall in Fenway. I think playing on AstroTurf puts more premium on speed and quickness. When you're playing infield on grass, you still have time to chase the ball if it gets by you. But on AstroTurf, if you're not quick, it will be by you.

"I think the true test of an outfielder is the ability to cut balls off, and you really have to guard the alleys on AstroTurf. (Fred) Lynn and (Dwight) Evans look like pretty quick outfielders, but (Carl) Yast-rezmski is a little older and I don't think he's as quick as he used to be. They'll also have to adjust to playing deeper here than they did at Fenway."

The Red Sox, wanting to familiarize themselves with the game conditions as much as possible, did not work out until 8:30 p.m. EDT Monday. One member of the club, catcher Carlton Fisk, openly admitted that AstroTurf fields were not on his list of favorite things.

"Everytime we came out of Kansas City this year, we felt as if we'd been in a football game," Fisk said. "Everybody's legs were sore and their backs were sore. The infielders and outfielders know they have to play deeper. I don't like AstroTurf. It takes away a lot of plays the fans like. It makes it difficult to cut off balls in the alley; it takes away diving plays, and it takes away the back-handed play down the third baseline."

Wise, however, feels that too big a deal is being made of the playing surface.

"Personally, I like this ball park," Wise said. "I pitched two of my best games ever here. I don't think the AstroTurf is going to play very much to their advantage. We have a lot of gifted athletes here and I've got a feeling they'll adjust their talents to the stadium."

Bout to be held on unspecified date

Former champ Foreman to face Lyle

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman, "enthusiastic" once more about fighting, agreed Monday to take on Ron Lyle in a 12-round bout, marking the former champion's first match since being knocked out by Muhammad Ali in Zaire, Africa, almost a year ago.

Foreman doesn't know—nor do the promoters—when or where he will fight Lyle, but it will be before the end of the year, hopefully on home television.

The bout will be promoted by Caesar's Palace, the gambling casino of Las Vegas. It will be supervised by Jerry Perenchio, who gave the world the first Ali-Frazier fight back in 1971.

Perenchio has a deadline of Dec. 15 to place the bout somewhere acceptable to one of the three major networks, or, failing that, with an independent network.

"We are committed to the fight," said Perenchio, "and if we can't get home television, or a workable closed circuit deal, then the fight will go on or the fighters can cash their letters of credit."

Foreman, looking close to his reasonable fighting weight of 230, seemed subdued and conciliatory as he discussed his feelings since being knocked out by Ali.

"I'm enthusiastic again," he said. "I want to get back to the basics. I want to win the title back. I think it important to fight in the United States, what with the bicentennial coming up and all that."

Perenchio was to meet with the three networks, and with Madison Square Garden officials, during the week, to see if an acceptable date could be decided upon.

The Garden is not happy about taking the match unless the New York metropolitan area would be blacked out for home viewing. Perenchio indicated it might be possible to do that, as long as the Garden would agree to a delayed telecast in the area, the richest home television market.

Foreman, with his close friend and now consultant Jim Brown at his side, said he had lost the "basics" in his loss to Ali, but that he was now determined to go back to those basics and regain the crown.

Ali, winner of a brutal 14-round war against Joe Frazier in Manila two weeks ago, has said he would defend next year against the winner of a Foreman-Ken Norton bout, but George brushed off questions about meeting Norton at the present time, saying he felt he needed "a few fights" before he felt he could challenge Ali.

"I'm getting ready to get back in the business," Foreman said. "My whole idea in 1976 is to become champion again. I did it once, I see no problem in doing it again."

Lyle was not present to give his views. It was reported his son was ill in Denver, but that Ron, who came off the floor to knock out Earnie Shavers four weeks ago, is already in training.

Sidney Gathrid, casino vice president, said that the match was not a "one shot" deal for Caesar's Palace, but the first of a continuing series of boxing matches which the Vegas establishment would promote.

Nolan, kingpin of the Reds' staff from 1970 through 1972 when he won a total of 45 games, came up with his injury late in the '72 season when he made a sidearm throw to first base on a slow roller hit to the mound by the late Pittsburgh Pirates' hitting star Roberto Clemente.

"You have no idea what it's like to be out of baseball for two years and not know if you'll ever throw strikes again..."

Buckeyes remain No. 1; Penn St. advances to 8th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oklahoma's victory over arch-rival Texas enabled the Sooners to close some ground on Ohio State in the United Press International Board of Coaches' national ratings, but the Buckeyes remained an overwhelming choice as the nation's top team.

The Buckeyes, who rolled over Iowa 49-0 Saturday, lost three first-place votes to Oklahoma this week, but Ohio State still was listed at the top of 34 of the 42 ballots.

With a perfect 5-0 mark this season, Ohio State polled 413 points, while Oklahoma totaled 372 points with five first-place votes after defeating Texas, 24-17.

Except for the slight reshuffling among the bottom teams, the top 10 remained virtually as it was last week.

Southern California, with two first-place votes, again was third and Nebraska remained fourth. Texas A&M, which picked up the other first-place vote, climbed from sixth to fifth.

Alabama continued its climb back among the leaders, after losing its season opener to Missouri, and moved up a notch from last week to sixth. Michigan and Penn State also moved up one spot to seventh and eighth, respectively.

Texas, which was fifth last week, dropped to ninth. Missouri, which made the biggest gain of the week, jumped from 18th to 10th after demolishing last week's 10th-rated Oklahoma State, 41-14.

Colorado, the fourth Big Eight team to gain national ranking, was 11th.

Florida moved up from 17th to 12th in the ratings after shutting out Vanderbilt, 35-0. Arizona State and Arizona, both unbeaten, each moved up one spot to 13th and 14th, respectively.

Notre Dame remained 15th and Tennessee regained national ranking as the No. 16 team. Pittsburgh also returned to the ratings as No. 17, with San Diego State again 18th. Miami of Ohio was 19th with no other team receiving votes this week.

Q. I think my 67-year-old mother may be able to get supplemental security income. She's going to a local social security office to apply. What kind of papers will she need to show them?

A. Your mother will need proof of her age, how much income she has, and where it comes from, any documents that give the value of property she may own and whatever life insurance policies she has. If she needs additional papers the social security office will advise her.

Q. I'll be 62 in a couple of months and am going to apply for social security retirement payments then. I know I'm eligible for checks because I've worked under a job covered by social security for the past 28 years. But what I'm not sure about is, does this mean I get the maximum monthly check because I've been covered by social security for such a long time?

A. No, when you have enough earnings credits to be eligible for social security benefits, then the amount of your monthly payment is based on your average earnings over a period of years. Because you're planning to take an early retirement at 62, your monthly checks will be reduced. However, since you'll be getting payments over a longer period of time, it evens itself out.

Q. My mother, who's 66, lives in Puerto Rico. Her only income is the small amount I'm able to send her every month. I wrote and told her to apply for supplemental security income payments. I have a letter from her in which she states that she went to the social security office in San Juan and they told her that people living in Puerto Rico cannot get supplemental security income. Is that true?

A. Yes, the supplemental security income program was set up only for residents of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. In Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, the original Federal-State assistance program for the aged, blind, and disabled still remains in effect. You should tell your mother to apply for assistance at the local welfare office.
